JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The University of Missouri curators can assume operation of the Independence Residence Center as a part of the MU-Kansas City campus, an attorney general's opinion said today.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond has asked the curators to study the possibility of operating the center as a four-year branch college.

It is now operated as a junior college in the first two years, and offers a piecemeal program for juniors, seniors and continuing education students.

Central Missouri State University at Warrensburg has been operating the center but plans to discontinue after this year.

The Jackson County College Committee, a citizen's group, owns the residence center building and owes about $855,000 in bonds. The center has about 2,100 students.

Rep. Alex J. Fazzino, D-Kansas City, asked whether the branch campus could be set up without legislative action.

The opinion noted that when the Kansas City campus was established, the only legislation needed was an appropriation bill of $7.1 million.

If the curators have authority to create a new campus, "then they must also have the authority to extend a campus already created," the opinion said.

The opinion said the Kansas City campus could be expanded to Independence through purchase or lease of the residence center.

Two other attorney general's opinions were handed down today relating to the state public school fund and the powers of county hospital boards to issue bonds.

Replying to the state commissioner of education, Dr. Arthur Mallory, the first opinion said the state Board of Education may invest money from the state public school fund without first asking an appropriation from the legislature.

The opinion also said securities in the public school fund may be sold, even at less than purchase price, if market and money conditions would warrant the sale.

Greeks may deport two terrorists

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The Greek government is expected to deport two Palestinian terrorists who were sentenced to death Thursday for killing four Americans and an Austrian in an attack at the Athens airport last summer.

A five-man court found Arid el Shafik, 22, and Khantouran Palaal, 21, guilty of premeditated murder "of a repulsive nature" and several other charges and handed down 27-year prison terms in addition to the sentence of death before a firing squad.

But police sources said it was "highly likely" that the government would hurry them out of the country, just as it did Arab terrorists given prison terms in two previous trials.

"It would be safer," said one observer, recalling the terrorist attempt to free Shafik and Palaal last month in which 32 persons were killed at the Rome and Athens airports.

The Greek government has also been courting the Arab governments to insure unhindered oil supplies for its growing refineries.

Shafik and Palaal, both Jordanian born and members of the Black September organization, were also convicted of being "dangerous for public order," the attempted murder of 46 persons, illegal detention of 46 hostages, causing damage to foreign property, illegal possession of arms and illegal use of arms.

Committee appears agreed on witnesses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee staff appears to have agreed on at least five witnesses to testify about a $100,000 payment made to President Nixon's friend C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, a source close to the committee says.

The witness list includes Rebozo plus former and present close associates of billionaire Howard Hughes, who provided the money allegedly intended for Nixon's re-election campaign, the source said.

However, Samuel Dash, the committee's chief counsel, said the list provided by the source included the names of some persons who would not be called.

The Watergate committee's four Democrats outvoted their three Republican colleagues Wednesday in deciding to hold three days of hearings next week on the Hughes-Rebozo money.

Meanwhile, Egil Krogh Jr. became the first former high-level White House aide to be given a jail sentence in the Watergate aftermath. He was given a six-month sentence Thursday for his part in the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Krogh had supervised the White House "plumbers," an investigative unit set up to locate and seal leaks to the press.

Despite denials by Dash that such a

Israel accelerates its Suez withdrawal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Israeli army accelerated its withdrawal from the west bank of the Suez Canal today.

Egypt was also scheduled to begin moving some of its troops to reduce its forces on the east side of the waterway, but there was no confirmation that this movement had started on schedule.

The Israeli withdrawal began ahead of time, on Wednesday. The military command in Tel Aviv refused to disclose details of the movement today, and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan refused to let newsmen from Israel observe it.

But spokesmen confirmed that the troop movement was going ahead in accordance with the final disengagement agreement signed by the Israeli and Egyptian chiefs of staff at Kilometer 101 west of the canal on Thursday.

Subpoenas issued for murder hearing

Subpoenas were issued Friday to three persons to appear as possible witnesses at the preliminary hearing Tuesday for Charles "Chuck" Brown, Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming said.

Brown, 53, 417 East St. Louis, was arraigned Thursday in Magistrate Court on a charge of first degree murder. He is charged with shooting Richard Keith Boggs, 20, 108 East Cooper, Tuesday night at Brown's home.

Fleming said the subpoenas were issued to Mrs. Bernice Brown, Brown's wife; Miss Barbara Johnson, 802 North Missouri; and Miss Gwendolyn Staten, 107 East Cooper.

Both Miss Staten and Miss Johnson have given authorities written statements of the incident, Fleming said. He said Brown's wife has made no written statement.

Fleming said all three were in the house at the time of the incident. Fleming declined to say how many were witnesses to the shooting.

Military sources in Tel Aviv said all Israeli troops would probably be out of the city of Suez, at the southern end of the canal, by Monday.

The sources said the Egyptians would probably regain full possession of Suez by noon Monday, and the bulk of the Egyptian 3rd Army could start moving across from the east bank where it has been trapped since the October war ended.

Under the disengagement agreement negotiated by United States Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, the United Nations peacekeeping force is to take control of territory evacuated by the Israelis for at least six hours before handing it over to the Egyptians.

The Egyptian chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Mohammed Gamazy, said the road from Cairo to Suez would be opened to civilian traffic on Tuesday.

Predictions of gas shortage 'accurate'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Energy Chief William E. Simon said today predictions of a 20 per cent shortage of gasoline are "becoming only too accurate."

However, Simon declined to make any new predictions on the likelihood of gasoline rationing.

Testifying before the Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee, Simon said he is encouraged by the trend of public conservation efforts and cited figures showing a 9.8 per cent savings in gasoline consumption for the past week.

Simon declined to endorse any of the current legislative proposals for a rollback in the price of domestic crude oil. However, he said that reducing the price of crude to $7 a barrel "can be accomplished."

Current domestic prices range from $5.25 a barrel for so-called "old" oil still controlled by the Cost of Living Council to around $10.35 a barrel for "new" or de-controlled oil.

Subcommittee chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said that unless a check is put on oil prices "we're going to see the most devastating inflation that the nation has ever been up against."

Prior to Simon's testimony Jackson responded to charges made Thursday by Z. D. Bonner, president of Gulf Oil-U.S., that executives of the seven leading oil companies had been treated unfairly when they appeared before the subcommittee earlier this week.

"I thought we leaned over as far as we could to give Mr. Bonner and the other witnesses a chance to state their case," Jackson said. "It's unfortunate when witnesses state their complaints away from the committee room. If they have any complaints, I think they ought to make them right here."

A Senate vote on emergency energy legislation authorizing President Nixon to order gasoline rationing is scheduled for Tuesday.

The White House had openly worked to prevent the bill's passage last month because of certain excess-profit provisions but today Simon told the subcommittee that "we completely support" the bill as an interim measure.

Jackson predicted the Senate would pass the bill next week.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield had filed a cloture petition Thursday aimed at thwarting the threat of a filibuster. This was withdrawn after an agreement to vote on the bill at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The bill's controversial excess profits provision would authorize the President to set prices on petroleum products that would prevent windfall profits by the oil companies.

Three of the nation's largest oil companies reported on Thursday large profit increases in 1973.

Mobil Oil Co., the nation's second largest oil company, reported a 47 per cent profit increase in 1973 compared to 1972, while Texaco, the industry's third largest, announced a 45 per cent gain, and Shell seventh in size, said its profits were up by 28 per cent.

Other oil companies have announced similar gains this week, including a 59 per cent increase by Exxon Corp., the nation's biggest oil company.

Legislation was introduced Thursday to trim some of big oil's tax privileges.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., filed a bill to end the oil depletion allowance that allows petroleum and natural gas producers to deduct 22 per cent of their gross income before calculating their taxes.

Production cutbacks announced by GM

DETROIT (AP) — With sales of its large cars slumping, General Motors has announced another round of major production cutbacks.

GM said Thursday the reductions will idle 75,000 assemblers in 14 plants and an indefinite number of GM component parts workers between now and April 1.

Hardest hit will be Michigan, where almost 50,000 workers are scheduled to be laid off.

It is GM's second major group of layoffs since Jan. 1.

Ford Motor Co. said it also is planning further layoffs. The second-largest auto maker has idled 11,200 workers so far, 4,100 of them indefinitely.

Chrysler Corp., which has 13,000 workers on indefinite furlough, declined comment on its plans.

GM laid off 86,000 workers, 38,000 indefinitely, in the period between Jan. 7 and today. December layoffs idled 135,000 workers. GM's normal United States production employment is about 420,000.

Many of the workers affected will receive up to 95 per cent of take-home wages through unemployment compensation and a pay protection plan in GM's contract with the United Auto Workers, the company said.

GM's sales figures for the first 20 days of this year show 128,896 units sold, compared with sales of 226,032 units during the same period in 1973. GM accounted for more than half of the domestic cars built and sold in the United States last year.

GM termed all of the layoffs, which involve home plants for the Buick, Pontiac, Cadillac and Oldsmobile divisions as well as 10 assembly division facilities, as temporary furloughs.

But a GM spokesman conceded some layoffs predicted for component parts workers, as opposed to assembly line layoffs, may be indefinite. Corporate spokesmen would not estimate how many of these manufacturing division layoffs there might be.

The assembly cutbacks are designed to trim production in the first quarter of 1974 about 16 per cent from the 4,217,000 units produced in the first three months of 1973, GM said. That means a cut of 674,000 cars, to 3,543,000.

Production plans for this week include Saturday overtime production at plants which assemble GM's small car lines.

Altogether, 14 off 22 GM assembly plants will be shut down.

Annual farming section Sunday

This Sunday, The Democrat-Capitol will feature its annual winter farm section, highlighted by both a review of the past year and projections of what is to come for 1974.

Also included is an explanation of the new 1974 ASCS program, which should guarantee increased farming activity this year.

The section is annually set aside in recognition of the farm community and as an aide to area farmers, who will find many suggestions concerning their farm operations from the University of Missouri and other agencies.

Fire cause puzzles authorities

An investigator for the state fire marshal's office in Jefferson City told The Democrat-Capitol Thursday afternoon that the cause of a second fire at the Nu-Way Cafe early Wednesday morning still has not been determined, but that the possibility of a gas leak starting the blaze has been ruled out.

The investigator, Tom Behrendsen, spent several hours at the cafe Thursday in an effort to determine the cause of two fires that resulted in more than $6,000 damage to the restaurant at 916 South Limit. The cause of the first fire, at 9:04 p.m. Tuesday, was listed as a "short in the wiring," while the second blaze, which broke out at 4:07 a.m. Wednesday is still puzzling authorities.

Jack Newby, owner of the cafe, said early Wednesday that he didn't understand why the cause of the second fire was listed as undetermined. He said that a new gas meter had been installed in the building Tuesday, after problems with gas shut-offs had been experienced on two successive Monday mornings when employees arrived for work. Newby indicated that a possible gas leak may have been responsible.

Behrendsen rejected that "Missouri Public Service Co. has had five employees out here since about 11 a.m.," Behrendsen said at the cafe Thursday afternoon. "We have negative results on any gas leakage of any kind. They've conducted ground probe tests all around the building, the buildings to the north and south of the cafe were checked, the pipes have all been inspected and pressure checks were made."

"The checks for possible gas leakage were very thorough and complete," he continued, "and I'm convinced that the fire was not started due to a gas leak."

Behrendsen said that he had "some leads and a few ideas" on the cause of the second fire "but nothing definite yet." He declined to comment on the nature of the leads.

Behrendsen said the "physical investigation," such as clearing rubble, taking numerous photographs and on-the-scene investigation would be completed Thursday and that he would spend Friday

Concordia Seminary torn by conflict

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The ax fell in an academic center of Lutheranism this week, and the structure verged on coming apart.

The tremors came from a classic conflict — between power and scholarship. For the time being, power prevailed, but the scholarship stalled.

Most professors at the nation's largest Lutheran seminary, Concordia in St. Louis, chafed under the gathering pressure, with some of them already forced out, including the seminary's president, the Rev. Dr. John H. Tietjen.

Classes halted, temporarily, with students unwilling to attend under the circumstances. Several standard courses were canceled. Scholars at other institutions voiced dismay and concern.

Pitting denominational officialdom against leading teachers, the conflict was personified by two men — Dr. Tietjen considered a "moderate," and the Rev. Dr. J.A. O. Preus, the avowed "conservative" president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

The struggle between them, and the contrasting positions they represent in the 2.8-million-member denomination, has been smoldering several years, somewhat like the fundamentalist-modernist controversy of a half century ago in most of the rest of Protestantism.

It reached a breaking point this week when the seminary's Board of Control, on which supporters of Dr. Preus recently gained a majority, suspended Dr. Tietjen from his post.

"Advocacy of false doctrine," the board cited as grounds for its action.

A "sham proceedings," said Dr. Tietjen.

His suspension set off a storm. With the faculty generally also accused of false teachings, students voted a moratorium on further classes, declaring their education "disrupted and jeopardized." The student body numbers about 600.

Either the faculty is guilty and unfit to teach or innocent and trustworthy guides, the students said in a resolution, adding they were forgoing classes until told just who were considered "false teachers" and why.

Three professors over 65 were ordered retired simultaneously with Dr. Tietjen's ouster, following earlier removal of another. Others pondered their course.

Of the 50-member faculty, 45 have backed Dr. Tietjen, rejecting as contrary to Lutheranism the elaborated requirements on Bible interpretation laid down by Dr. Preus and approved by a 3-2 majority of the Church's convention last year.

He has insisted on the literalistic "facticity" of various Bible passages which many scholars see as conveying truth through allegory, such as accounts of a six-day creation, and of conscience pursuing Jonah even inside a big fish.

The conflict has polarized the denomination, with "moderates" forming a functioning wing within it — a bloc Dr. Preus calls "rebels." It also has clouded relationships among the three major branches of Lutheranism, numbering nine million.

The accreditation of Concordia, subjected to a drawn-out investigation at Dr. Preus' behest, has been put on probation by the American Association of Theological Schools because of the resulting disruptions.

Defends political system

Despite Watergate, there's nothing wrong with the American political system that can't be cured by good people getting involved, Democratic State Treasurer James I. Spainhower said Thursday in Sedalia.

Cautioning against too much suspicion of government, Spainhower said: "It may be that the only thing that's wrong is not that government has stepped in, but that too many of us have stepped out" of the political process.

Scoring the trend toward political independence, Spainhower said people should join the party closest to their ideological views and then work for it. He said more public involvement in politics can prevent Watergate-type scandals.

Other views Spainhower expressed during a question-and-answer session following his talk before the Sedalia Kiwanis Club.

President Nixon should leave office, perhaps under a promise of immunity from prosecution. "He has lost the capacity to lead," Spainhower said.

Political campaigns should be financed by public funds, so candidates wouldn't have to be rich or beholden to "vested interests."

His "options are open" regarding running for higher office.

Guests of the club were Charles Rayl, with Herb Taylor; Chuck Finley, with his father, John Finley; Robert Hoskins, with Lynn Harrison, and Lou Harris.

Middle East commitment 'questioned'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Middle East peace negotiating process may be long and drawn out, and may test America's close friendship with Israel, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton said Thursday night.

"Unfortunately, there are voices in this country asking about the practical benefits of our commitment. There are already some Americans who doubt the value of our long-term alliance with Israel," the Missouri Democrat said in remarks prepared for delivery at a meeting of the Jewish Federation of St. Louis.

"These voices reflect a cold pragmatism that may well characterize what America has become. But that is not the quality that made our nation great," he said.

Eagleton told the audience that "if our foreign policy can no longer accommodate moral commitments, if our diplomacy can not countenance compassion, if our pragmatism outweighs our dedication to principle, then we will have indeed passed the pinnacle of our greatness."

Church news

Dr. John Burns of Hannibal-LaGrange College will speak at the 10:45 a.m. and 7:10 p.m. worship services Sunday at First Baptist Church, Sixth and Lamine.

Exceeding the Requirements" is the Sunday sermon title of the Rev. Dr. Roger Williams at the morning service at Broadway Presbyterian Church. The Scripture text is Matthew 5:17-48.

The annual congregational meeting will be held after the service.

Wayne Isgriggs will deliver the message at the 10:45 a.m. Sunday worship service at Calvary Baptist Church. At the 7 p.m. service, Pete Cornine, Loyd Gehlken and Ward Golston will share personal testimonies with the congregation. At the close of the service the ordinance of baptism will be observed.

Baptist men's day also will be observed Sunday at the church. Several men of the church will bring their testimonies at a 7:25 a.m. breakfast for men at the church.

Mrs. Rowlen, whose husband is a retired Christian pastor, will speak in observance of Laity Day at the church. The service will be broadcast by KDRO radio at 11:30 a.m.

Revival meetings are being held nightly, except Saturdays, at the First Assembly of God Church, Sixth and Summit. Services are at 7:30 p.m. Sunday services are at 10:30 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Leading the revivals are the Rev. and Mrs. Loren Wooten, Springfield. The services will continue to Feb. 10.

"Truth" will be the subject of discussion Sunday for members of the First Church of Christ Scientist, 120 East Sixth. The Golden Text is Psalms 25:4, 5.

Danforth says Bond will seek re-election

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth says he is sure Gov. Christopher S. Bond will seek re-election as governor in 1976 instead of running for the U.S. Senate.

Danforth and Bond, Missouri's top Republican officeholders, have been the subject of speculation as to whether they were on a collision course as potential senatorial candidates.

Danforth was asked about that in a news conference Thursday and he replied, "No, he's going to run for re-election in 1976."

Questioned further, Danforth said Bond "has told me several times face to face. I think it's certain—you know, as much as anything is certain in politics—I think it's pretty clear."

Without having to challenge Bond in a primary election, Danforth is expected to wait and seek the seat of Sen. Stuart Symington, Democrat, in 1976 instead of battling Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton in this year's election.

Sister Fix It

Sister Valentine Marie Zajdel is known as "Sister Fix It." She can take the "hum" from a radio, the "roll" from a television set and make a typewriter type again. An elementary school teacher for 27 years at the School Sisters of Notre Dame in Chicago, Sister Valentine took a crash course in typewriter repair and now saves her convent and school about $1,000 a year in repair bills. She's now enrolled in a TV repair course. Having taken a vow of poverty, she doesn't charge money for repairs. If she does charge, it's a prayer: "Just a Hail Mary or Our Father," she says. (UPI)

Decrease in firm's gas profits

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Laclede Gas Co., President Lee M. Liberman told shareholders Thursday that warmer weather and "well-nigh universal compliance" with government requests to lower thermostats caused a decrease in Laclede profits at the end of last year.

It is one of the reasons Laclede will seek a rate hike next month.

Liberman said operating revenue in the three months that ended Dec. 31 declined to $36 million from the $42 million of the previous period in 1972.

Part of the profit decline,

Liberman said, was caused by weather, which was 10 per cent warmer than normal in 1973 and 25 per cent warmer during the fourth quarter.

He added, however, that Laclede was not prepared for the conservation efforts, which resulted in a decline in gas sales on warmer days of 60 million cubic feet.

The decline in sales will result in a decline of from $12 million to $13 million in revenue this year.

The rate hike request, the first since 1969, would be filed Feb. 1 with the commission.

Asks for damages following mishap

A $55,000 damage suit was filed Thursday in Pettis County Circuit Court by Thomas and Naomi Russell, 234 South Monteuau, against Continental Trailways.

The suit contends that on Jan. 28 last year Russell was injured when a Continental Trailways bus he was riding on came to an "abrupt stop" and threw him from his seat to the floor. The petition says the incident occurred on Highway 50 about three miles west of LaMonte after the bus traveled off the ice-slicked roadway into the highway median.

Russell says he has sustained permanent injuries as a result of the incident.

He is seeking $50,000 for his alleged injuries. His wife is asking for $5,000.

Drug abuse study team discusses meeting plans

An 11-member team that will represent Sedalia at the Governor's Conference on Alternatives to Drug Abuse, Feb. 28-March 2, met Monday evening to discuss the upcoming conference and a long questionnaire that must be completed prior to the Jefferson City session. The group met at the Municipal Building.

Mayor Jerry Jones, who is team "facilitator," said 15 cities will have teams at the session, which will include an opening address by Gov. Christopher Bond, and several workshops on various aspects of drug abuse.

The group will meet again Feb. 21 to make final preparations for the conference and meet with a representative of the state Division of Mental Health, one of the conference contributors.

Circuit Court Judge Frank Meyer said his investigation of the various area drug abuse programs revealed that "the effort's being fragmented. It needs a concerted approach in guidance." He noted that federally funded programs are directed only toward "hard-core" narcotics addiction.

Police Chief William Miller and Sheriff Emmet Fairfax agreed that the local drug abuse problem appears to involve little or no "hard" narcotics. Miller said the primary drug situation encountered by police involves marijuana or hashish.

Miller also said, with Fairfax's concurrence, that even the "pill problem" formerly seen here has tapered off.

Dr. Robert Glass said he knew of no hospital treatment of any hard-drug addiction problems locally.

Earl Finley, Smith-Cotton principal, said the school system's program is primarily one of drug education. He said he feels a responsible agency, such as a community drug council mentioned in the survey, should be in charge of all drug abuse programs.

Jones told The Democrat-Capital that "hopefully we'll come out with some concrete plans" following next month's conference.

Also on the team are Gary Fleming, Pettis County prosecuting attorney; Magistrate Judge Hazel Palmer; Larry Smithson, principal at Sedalia Junior High School; the Rev. Phil Newell; and Doug Kneibert, editor of The Democrat-Capital.

Training program date is set here

Community volunteers in Project Supplementary Security Income Alert will receive their first training instructions at 9 a.m. Tuesday in the Social Security Administration office's conference room, 825 Thompson Blvd.

Participants in the program will attempt to notify all persons in Pettis, Benton and Saline Counties who qualify to receive monthly payments under the new federal supplementary security program which took effect Jan. 1.

The new program is designed to replace money these people have been getting from state public assistance programs. To qualify for the program, persons must be 65 or older, or be blind or disabled.

Persons who normally would have received state assistance checks in January will automatically begin receiving the new federal payments. If the payment, plus other income, is less than the total income received in December, 1973, the state will compensate for the difference with a supplemental payment, it was explained.

Persons who have not received state assistance payments in the past, but who have received social security income must, however, apply for the new federal money. It is possible for persons to receive both payments.

Judy Foster, of the Warrensburg Red Cross, estimated that three million persons across the country are eligible for the program, but have not yet enrolled. Approximately 2,000 persons in the Sedalia social security district are qualified, she said.

The Sedalia Red Cross office will assist in coordinating the alert program locally, it was announced. A spokesman for the office Friday said she had no idea how many local volunteers would be attending the meeting "but I imagine they'll want as many as they can get."

Guilty pleas are entered by Sedalians

Two Sedalia men pleaded guilty in Pettis County Circuit Court Thursday to charges of second-degree burglary.

Appearing in court were Calvin L. Marshall, 21, 625 North Osage; and Earl Leon Buckner, 20, 301 East Jefferson. The two are charged with the Dec. 13 break-in at the Looney-Bloss Lumber Co., 301 East Jefferson.

Circuit Court Judge Frank Meyer delayed sentencing to Feb. 21 pending a pre-sentencing investigation by the State Board of Probation and Parole. Their trial had been set for March 19.

Buckner is free on $3,500 bond. Marshall remains in the county jail in lieu of $3,500 bond.

In another case Thursday afternoon, Judge Meyer overruled a motion by Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming that probation be revoked for Floyd Gilmore, 18, 231 West Saline.

Judge Meyer stipulated that Gilmore would continue on probation rather than serve a jail sentence on the condition that he pay court costs and does not again violate any conditions of probation.

Fleming had alleged that Gilmore, besides failing to pay court costs, had failed to attend probation docket hearings in Circuit Court in November and earlier this month.

Gilmore was sentenced to two, two-year jail sentences last March after he pleaded guilty to burglary and stealing charges. He was later placed on two-years' probation.

Syringes taken from veterinary clinic in Sedalia

Between 50 and 75 syringes were reported stolen during a break-in of the Sedalia Veterinary Center, Green Ridge Road, sometime Thursday night or early Friday morning.

The burglars broke out a portion of a sliding window on the front of the building to gain access. They then apparently found the keys to the safe and opened it, but nothing was reported taken from it.

The box of 100cc syringes normally contains 100 but, according to the report, the box was not completely full.

Apparently nothing but the syringes was taken. Exit from the building appeared to have been through the back door.

The break-in was reported by Glenn Beck, an employee of the center.

In other police news, $200 in cash was reported stolen from a safe at Freese Dairy, 100 South Prospect, sometime between 8 and 8:45 a.m. Wednesday.

Jewel Miles, an employee, told police that someone apparently entered the store, went to the safe, removed the money and then left the store.

Number is corrected

In a story appearing in Wednesday's Democrat and Thursday's Capital regarding new offerings by the Sedalia Recreation Department, the department telephone number was inadvertently listed as 826-7375. The correct telephone number for the department is 826-7357.

studying what he found, as well as talking to people. A final report on the cause of the fire was not expected before Monday.

State authorities were called by fire chief Willis Jabas following the Nu-Way fire, which was the third business fire in the last three weeks. The rash of fires caused nearly a quarter of a million dollars damages.

The fires started on Jan. 10 when the Carnival pizza restaurant on South Limit sustained a loss estimated at $150,000. On Jan. 20 the Jett Carpet and Furniture Warehouse on South Limit was burned to the ground with a loss estimated at nearly $70,000, and Tuesday's and Wednesday's fires at the Nu-Way Cafe resulted in about $6,000 in damage.

Announce plans to lift ban on spray adhesives

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission today announced plans to lift the six-month-old federal ban on 13 brands of aerosol spray adhesives March 1 but said this does not represent an endorsement of the product's safety.

Chairman Richard O. Simpson said a panel of 11 scientific experts studied all safety data and "overwhelmingly supported a lifting of the ban."

Dr. J. Rodman Seely, the University of Oklahoma researcher whose preliminary studies indicated a possible relationship between use of the spray and chromosome damage and birth defects, agreed with the decision.

"I have no disagreement with their action, and I am pleased it will help to relieve concern and anxiety for a large number of people," Seely said in a statement. "We are continuing our studies of chromosome damage and its possible role in causing birth defects."

Commissioner Lawrence Kushner said at a news conference: "The commission is not making an endorsement for the safety of this product. But at this stage, this product has been investigated more than most other consumer products."

The commission's ban last Aug. 17 and 28 was its first under the imminent hazard section of the Federal Hazardous Substances Act.

Simpson said the one-month delay in lifting the ban was an added safeguard, in case more information becomes available during the interim.

Astronauts begin last two weeks in space

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab 3's astronauts, the first men to orbit the earth 1,000 times, began their final two weeks in space today and set a space endurance mark that might stand for a decade.

At 1:47 a.m. EDT, Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson each established a mark for the most time spent in space by an individual.

The previous mark of 69 days, 15 hours, 45 minutes had been held by Alan L. Bean, who logged his time on two flights, the 59½-day Skylab 2 trip and the 10-day Apollo 12 moon-landing mission.

Carr, Pogue and Gibson have recorded all their space time on this one journey. Ten days ago they surpassed the single mission record of the Skylab 2 crew, set last September aboard the same space station.

On Thursday, the Skylab 3 astronauts also became the first men to orbit the earth 1,000 times and set their sights on their goal of 84 days. They are to splash down in the Pacific Ocean two weeks from today, on Feb. 8.

To date they have traveled more than 28½ million miles and their hoped-for 12-week record is expected to hold up for several years.

Skylab Program Director William C. Schneider gave the crew a go-ahead on Thursday for seven more days in space, through Jan. 31.

An ailing control gyroscope is the only major problem aboard the 85-ton station as it sails into the final two weeks.

But the gyro performance steadied somewhat Thursday, prompting Flight Director Neil Hutchinson to say, "I am much more optimistic about it today than I was yesterday."

Committee on doctrinal dispute formed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Striking students and faculty at Concordia Seminary were urged Thursday by Dr. J.A.O. Preus, president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, to end their boycott of classes while a committee studies the doctrinal controversy which has erupted at the school.

A majority of the 420 seminarians voted Monday to boycott classes after the school president, Rev. John H. Tietjen, was suspended on charges of allowing false doctrine to be taught. The 46-member faculty followed suit Tuesday in an act of solidarity with the students.

"We have formed a committee made up of seven conservatives and seven moderates to define the doctrinal problems within the church and hopefully to seek solutions," Dr. Preus told reporters.

He said the solution would not be found overnight, and added that his main concern was to hold the church together in the face of a deepening split caused by differences of opinion on how the Scriptures are to be interpreted.

The synod's summer convention at New Orleans approved a number of resolutions which were critical of the doctrinal interpretations made at Concordia by faculty members under Dr. Tietjen's direction.

Dr. Preus said he had sent letters to all faculty members, assuring them that most teachers have been cleared of charges of teaching false doctrine and he urged them to resume their classroom work.

Acting president Rev. Dr. Martin Scharlemann had said that classes would resume Monday "even if we have to fly them (teachers) in from other schools."

But, student body president Gerald Smith said he could guarantee that none of the students who backed the moratorium (about 80 per cent of the student body) would be in class Monday morning.

The students voted Thursday afternoon to extend their moratorium through at least Feb. 4, while efforts were made to gain support from outside pastorates.

About 200 students were dispatched to visit Lutheran pastorates across the country to explain their position. Letters were also sent by the students deploring the ouster of Tietjen.

There are about 3,000,000 members in the synod.

Reappraisal for county is extended

The Continental Appraisal Co. has been granted an additional year to reappraise Pettis County for tax purposes, according to Presiding Judge Harry Walch.

Walch said Continental's contract was extended Thursday after the company requested the additional time. Under the new terms of the contract, the job is to be completed by Jan. 1, 1976.

Walch said the extension was granted by the county court "due to the inability of the company to start the project on time."

Continental was to begin the re-evaluation of county property last summer, but delays in obtaining printing forms forced the company to postpone its starting date.

Actual reappraisal work is scheduled to begin this summer, although the supervisor of the project, Mark Speaker, arrived in Sedalia earlier this month.

Walch said the extended deadline will mean that county residents will have "plenty of time" to be heard before boards of equalization if they choose to dispute their new tax assessment.

Walch also disclosed that Speaker had purchased a house in Sedalia.

The county is to pay Continental $144,500 at the completion of the project.

Continue efforts for industry

Although the City Council rejected a proposal to hire an economic development director, the Economic Development Board has not given up efforts to continue seeking industry for Sedalia.

Members of the board present at a meeting with Mayor Jerry Jones Thursday afternoon, agreed to wait until after the April city elections to re-submit an economic director proposal to the council.

Councilman Don Broadus, who is also board chairman, said "after the election it may be possible to take steps" toward hiring a director.

However, before making definite plans in this direction the board chose to discuss the proposal with board members unable to attend the meeting. Louis Hughes Jr., Adam Fischer and Walter Savio.

Jones said he called the meeting to discuss the future of Sedalia's economic development and to get "inputs" from the board to see how the city might continue to recruit new industries "under the present set of circumstances." The post of economic director, formerly held by Bill Hall, has been vacant since Sept. 1.

Jones told the board that since then most inquiries from industries have been routed through the mayor's office and Broadus. Jones said most of the other city offices are kept busy with their own affairs and probably would not have the time to recruit industry.

Broadus said that most of the inquiries have been the result of industrial advertisements placed in trade magazines. However, he said "the biggest problem we've got is follow-up."

Broadus pointed out that individual board members could take care of correspondence by mail and telephone and even be on hand for tours of the city. However, few of the members would be able to take time from their regular jobs to make the out-of-town trips that are necessary for selling Sedalia to prospective industries.

"We've lost that element of personal contact," Jones said.

He said that some of the replies he has received from prospective industries have implied that Sedalia "is perhaps number one or number two on their list." He said other replies have indicated that industries are still in the investigative stages.

"That's really the time that we need to get back to them," Jones said.

In discussing ways to continue seeking industry, Jones said that the Chamber of Commerce could help because it is "a group that has a vital interest in industrial development."

Board member Robert Woolery also pointed out that Sedalia is in a regional planning commission and that perhaps it could "go collective" with other cities.

Broadus said that the city needs to update its labor data which is now more than two years old. He said this could be done through a computerized labor survey. Broadus also said the labor data is essential to Sedalia's industrial development because "that's the first questions they (industrial representatives) ask."

Jones said he "wouldn't want to see the board dissolved or disbanded. The board will be more important without a director than with a director."

The board agreed to meet again at 4 p.m. Thursday for further discussion with those members not present and perhaps representatives from the Chamber of Commerce.

Krogh gets six months for his Watergate role

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egil Krogh Jr. says he received no orders from President Nixon to send burglars into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist and that he has no information that could implicate the President.

But Krogh, sentenced Thursday to six months in prison for his role in the break-in, skirted the question of where the orders originated because the matter will come before the courts.

"I would simply say that I considered that a break-in was within the authority of the unit and that I did not act to foreclose one from occurring despite the opportunity to do so." Asked if he had information that would implicate John D. Ehrlichman, his former boss and one-time top aide to Nixon — Krogh replied: "I don't know."

Ehrlichman had given the unit — known as the plumbers — authority to engage in covert activity to obtain information on Ellsberg, then identified as responsible for the leak of the Pentagon papers.

Ehrlichman has pleaded innocent to a California indictment charging conspiracy, burglary and perjury in the case. He is scheduled for trial in April along with David R. Young Jr. and G. Gordon Liddy.

Krogh had pleaded guilty to one count of conspiring to violate the rights of Dr. Lewis Fielding, Ellsberg's psychiatrist, whose files were rifled Sept. 3, 1971. Krogh could have been sentenced to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

But Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said "apart from this offense" Krogh's public service was exceptional and that he had been assigned "a wholly improper, illegal task ... by higher authority."

Krogh is the first high-level White House aide to be sent to prison in the Watergate aftermath.

As he had told Gesell earlier about his role in the burglary, Krogh told newsmen: "It was a terrible mistake on my part; I regret it more than I can say." Krogh said he talked with Nixon only once about his unit's activities, on July 24, 1971.

"I have just listened to a tape of that meeting and Dr. Ellsberg's name did not appear to be mentioned," Krogh said.

"It must be that those instructions were relayed to me by Mr. Ehrlichman. In any event, I received no specific instruction or authority whatsoever regarding the break-in from the President, directly or indirectly."

Sentenced to six months

Egil "Bud" Krogh, head of the White House plumbers, talked with newsmen Thursday following his sentencing to serve a minimum of six months in jail for his part in the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in 1971. Krogh, in a statement to reports, said, "I received no specific instruction or authority whatsoever regarding the break-in from the President, directly or indirectly." (UPI)

Coffee and your heart

DEAR DR. LAMB — A column of yours dealt with the subject of individuals who drink more than five cups of coffee per day being more prone to heart attacks, but that a decaffeinated product would obviate this problem.

In another column in the same paper a doctor disputed this statement by saying a collaborative drug study ruled out caffeine as being responsible for the increased heart attacks in those persons drinking over five cups of coffee per day.

Please clarify, as many persons are interested in the facts.

DEAR READER — I believe if you read my column carefully again, you will note I stated that scientists had reported this relationship. In fact, they have. The latest report was in Lancet, a respected medical journal.

This is not the first time coffee has been reported as a factor in heart attacks. Dr. Paul of Chicago, and formerly president of the American Heart Assn., reported this relationship a number of years earlier. Other scientists have disputed the validity of the observation.

I don't think anyone can make a definite statement that can be proved without controversy on the evidence at hand. However, I do believe that coffee is harmful to the heart and circulation of many people.

It is true that a heavy coffee drinker will have a considerably faster resting heart rate than a person who does not use coffee.

It is true that people with resting heart rates over 80 beats per minute are much more likely to have a heart attack or drop dead than people with resting heart rates below 70 beats per minute.

It is true that coffee will stimulate the heart to have extra or skipped beats in many people who have these problems. All competent heart specialists recommend patients with these problems should avoid coffee and cigarettes. Individuals with serious heart disease who tend to have some of these types of irregularity are more likely to have a serious irregularity of the heart. However, many healthy people with such skipped beats do not have serious heart problems and in them these beats, although annoying, are not life threatening.

It is true that people who are nervous do not need the additional stimulus from caffeine, a powerful nerve stimulant. It is not necessary to wash down tranquilizers with coffee or any other drink containing caffeine.

Now, if you don't have any digestive problems, are not nervous or tense, don't have any skipped beats, and your resting heart rate is well below 70 beats a minute, you probably can use appreciable amounts of coffee without harm. But, if you have any of these findings, you would be better off with a decaffeinated drink, or none at all. These are the facts as I see them. (NEA)

Urges passage of Port Authority bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Sen. Edward Linehan, D-St. Louis, urged a Senate subcommittee Wednesday to approve a bill to allow creation of a Port Authority for St. Louis.

Linehan, the bill's sponsor, said "lets get a bill we can use as a vehicle to get money flowing into the state. The other ports are getting ahead of us and we've been sitting on our duffs."

The bill, which would create a five-member commission appointed by the mayor, was supported by Matt Abboud of the Teamsters Union.

Abboud said he also liked some aspects of House bill supported by the governor which would create a state port authority.

WORLD ALMANAC
FACTS

New York Senator Thomas Platt nominated Theodore Roosevelt for vice president in order to remove him from the governorship of New York. In 1900, after being elected to this office, The World Almanac recalls, the energetic Roosevelt was rescued from the "honorable seclusion" of the vice presidency when President William McKinley was assassinated.

Arab oil producers are showing concern also

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

Inconceivable as it may seem, monetary officials working on Middle East oil believe major Arab producers are as worried as Americans about a long-run high price for petroleum and want a deal with us as quickly as one can be arranged.

Cromley

This belief is based partly on a careful analysis of what Saudi Arabian, Kuwaiti and Egyptian leaders have said in public and private, partly on an analysis of what a continuation of extremely high petroleum prices will do eventually to the Arabian countries concerned.

Arab producers are aware their oil will not last forever. Even before that D (for depletion) day, the West, under continuing severe pressure, will develop alternate energy sources sufficient to free the United States, West Europe and Japan of crippling dependence on Arab petroleum.

In the long run the major oil rich Arab countries must look to returns on investments to keep their states afloat.

The possibilities for investment (other than oil) in Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Abu Dhabi are somewhat limited. These countries and some of their associates must go heavily into the West's money markets and economies, either as owners and operators, shareholders or as banker-money lenders.

The Arab leaders apparently think in terms of a 10 per cent return on money they loan. They've been getting this in the European markets. But 10 per cent money, loaned to industry, is usually possible on an extended basis in huge quantities only in vigorous growth economies or during inflation. (We are talking of $100 billion or so of Arab funds and perhaps much more). Therefore, if the Arabs calculate they must receive 10 per cent on their investments to meet their long run domestic economic goals, they must vigorously work to promote — not stunt — economic growth in the West.

Note too, that because of the smallness of potential markets in their own countries, even a preoccupation with domestic industrial buildup by the oil-rich Arab states would depend for its success on prosperous foreign customers able to buy their wares in quantity.

If the Arabs should ruin West Europe, Japan and the United States, it is obvious their own future livelihood would be wiped out. If they stop short of ruin, and do nothing more than overburden the Western economies with petroleum that is too high in price, they will retard the free world's growth and thereby limit their own future income. If they even threaten continuation of extremely high prices over an extended period, they almost certainly insure that the United States, West Europe and Japan will invest so heavily in development of new energy sources that oil will be a glut on the market a decade or two from now.

The economically wise Arab move today, therefore, is to conclude a deal with the West now while they have the whip hand over a frightened free world. If they wait, the Arabs may lose some of their negotiating chips.

It is always dangerous to interpret what is in the minds of the men who run foreign countries. We have, to our sorrow, learned it is not always possible to know what is in the minds of our own leaders of either party.

But the officials this reporter has talked to believe the Arab leaders have said enough and hinted enough to make them confident of their analysis. These Americans are also counting on the fact that some of the key Arabs concerned directly with oil are graduates of Harvard and other American schools. They are knowledgeable in Western industry, finance and commerce and are thus able as their Western counterparts to judge the effects of extremely high oil prices — and able to calculate just what the market will bear over the longer run.

Having said all this, it is also clear to U.S. officials that negotiating with the Arabs will not be an easy road.

F. D. KNEIBERT
EditorThe Nixon 'proof':
bring it forward

President Nixon says he will "fight like hell" to avoid impeachment and clear himself of any suspicion of wrongdoing in the Watergate affair. It would be advisable that he do so with something more than words.

According to Vice President Gerald Ford, proof of Nixon's innocence exists. Ford said Tuesday that the President had offered to show him documents that would absolve him of any wrongdoing in Watergate.

Ford stated flatly that Nixon was not involved in the highly damaging erasure of an 18½-minute segment of a subpoenaed White House tape. He added further: "I know from these conversations (with Nixon) that the President had no prior knowledge of the Watergate break-in, took no part in the cover-up and was not part of any of these allegations that have been made by some."

Now Mr. Ford has a reputation for being an honest, straight forward fellow. We cannot dismiss out of hand what he says, although at this point it requires a supreme act of faith on the part of the American people.

The vice president said it would be "unwise and improper" for the President to release transcripts of conversations between him and his former counsel, John Dean III, even though they allegedly would prove Nixon's innocence. Presumably, the reasoning here rests on the claim of executive privilege that Nixon has stood on in the past to safeguard his personal tapes and documents.

But after all that Watergate has put the nation through—the crisis of presidential leadership, the misdeeds of high officials, the severe damage done to the image of the United States both at home and abroad—this can no longer be a major consideration. If this cloud can be lifted by the submission of hard evidence, then bring it forward.

President Nixon owes this to himself. But more important than that, he owes it to the American people.

"INCREDIBLE!"

Merry-go-round

Nixon was unable to open beachfront

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — In late 1970, President Nixon attempted to open some choice federal beachfront property next to his San Clemente estate to residential development.

The timing suggests he may have sought to reward his millionaire benefactor, Robert Abplanalp, for picking up the heavy end of his San Clemente mortgage.

A small part of the story is known. The rest has been locked in the files of the White House and the General Services Administration.

In 1969, Abplanalp loaned the President $450,000 to make the down-payment on the San Clemente place. The following year, Abplanalp granted him another $175,000 loan to make the first mortgage payment. Nixon put up only $42,054 of his own money.

Even on his $200,000 presidential salary, he couldn't keep up the steep mortgage payments and reduce the $625,000 debt. So Abplanalp obligingly cancelled the whole debt and assumed most of the mortgage. In return, the President decided over to him the bulk of the San Clemente estate.

The aerosol-valve millionaire, in other words, put up 15 times more money for the President's Pacific paradise than did the President himself. Yet Nixon got rid of his total debt to Abplanalp and still wound up with the heart of the estate.

The President also continued to occupy the entire estate, including Abplanalp's portion, without paying a penny rent.

Our investigation indicated that the millionaire's munificence may have been motivated by something more tangible than pure friendship. For at the precise time the President was negotiating to unload most of his San Clemente acreage upon Abplanalp, he also directed the government to declare certain parts of the adjacent marine base at Camp Pendleton surplus.

More significantly, the President's people sought to sell the choicest parcel, including the excellent surfing beach known as the "Trestles," for residential development.

This particular tract happens to tie up against the San Clemente property which Abplanalp bought from Nixon, separated only by a small Coast Guard intrusion.

With the aerosol king's inside connections, he would have been in excellent position to pick up this valuable beachfront. But no matter who got it, the residential development would have enhanced the value of Abplanalp's adjoining acreage.

As it happened, Congress prohibited the sale of Camp Pendleton land. But by this time, the President had already made his favorable deal with Abplanalp.

The negotiations with Abplanalp began in mid-September 1970, according to the White House's own account of the transaction. The President's other millionaire benefactor, Bebe Rebozo, was also involved in the deal at first. But Abplanalp later bought out Rebozo's interest.

Suppressed documents in our possession show that on Sept. 14, 1970, at the same time the President was maneuvering to get out from under his huge San Clemente debt, John Ehrlichman sent a memo to the Federal Property Review Board. This was set up by the President in early 1970 and was dominated by his most trusted aides, including Ehrlichman.

"While at San Clemente," Ehrlichman wrote his fellow board members, "the President was again made aware of the desirability of moving Camp Pendleton from governmental ownership into the hands of local government and the private sector."

Under Ehrlichman's spur, the bureaucrats moved swiftly. Two government appraisers toured the Marine base during the first week in October 1970.

On Oct. 23, they filed a 28-page report. Despite a careful description of the history and economics of the region, not a single word was mentioned about Camp Pendleton's important next-door neighbor, Richard Nixon.

Nonetheless, the survey team recommended against building a proposed mobile home park on a section of the base near the Nixon property. "Such a development on what is a prime portion of the parcel," objected the survey team, "could have a . . . detrimental effect on the adjoining residential area of San Clemente."

Instead, the survey team recommended that the most desirable 3,400 acres, including the beachfront next to the presidential estate, "should be sold for residential development. The 3,400 acres is valued at approximately $5 million."

In a slide-show presentation to the Federal Property Review Board, the executive secretary was quoted as urging "that the survey should be made as expeditiously as possible and a report made directly to the board without going through the normal and lengthy procedure of obtaining comments from the Defense Department on our specific recommendation."

Despite these comments, former board official Darrell Trent contended that the survey "was handled under normal procedures" and that he didn't believe "any special push was given to it."

Despite the documentation to the contrary, associates of the President insisted to us that he wanted to bequeath the beachfront area to the public as a park. An official spokesman said the surplus land "was leased to the state and can only be used for park purposes. There was no move toward residential development."

In any event, if the President's real intent was to provide Abplanalp with a lucrative land deal, the attempt to declare the tract surplus was dashed by Congress the following year.

The little engine that couldn't

By DOUG KNEIBERT

Once upon a time there was a little train named Amtrak. It ran on a shiny and very bumpy track between New York and Chicago with stops at Harrisburg, Washington, Altoona and lots of other towns.

One day Amtrak was chugging proudly out of Pennsylvania Station—and on time at that—carrying a load of eight cars. Three of the cars even had heat.

By the time it reached Trenton, the colorful little Amtrak train was only an hour and a half late. The engineer tooted his whistle and pulled out of the station, after some jolly workmen filled the water tanks that had not been filled back in the Penn Station like they were supposed to.

As the little train puffed into the hills of Pennsylvania, it was pushed off on a side track to wait for a big shiny freight train, carrying scrap and empty boxcars to Gary. Some of the boys and girls in the Amtrak train began to cry and wonder if they would ever get over the mountain. Some of the boys went to the bar car.

Then the conductor with shiny gold buttons on his coat came through the front car and asked all the nice little boys and girls for their tickets. When asked when the train would get over the mountain and into North Philly, he said he didn't know.

The clown, who was also known as the passenger service representative, told the boys and girls not to be upset, and that he would find out why they hadn't moved in two hours. The clown walked forward to the engine.

He asked the engineer, "Why, sir, are we stopped? We have lots of boys and girls in the cars who have to get to Johnstown, Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago. If they don't, they may not have jobs come Monday."

The clown was told that the jolly workmen had pumped water into the fuel tanks instead of the water tanks. He thanked the engineer and took this back and told all the nice boys and girls, who called him naughty names.

Then the little clown decided to flag down the next freight engine that came by and ask for help. Pretty soon one came along. It ground to a stop after seeing the little clown waving a flag.

"Please, Mr. Freight, our train is broken and we can't get over the mountain," said the clown. "Will you pull us?"

"You've got to be kidding," said the big freight. "Why I bump off every Amtrak train between here and Chicago. Everybody knows I'm more important than a mere passenger train."

Then the clown heard a strange sound. "I think I can! I think I can! I think I can!" came voices from the passenger cars.

"You think you can do what?" asked the clown.

"Walk from her to North Philly and grab a bus," said the boys and girls.

And they did just that.

Opening lead—Q♥

By Oswald & James Jacoby

North's one-diamond response is an example of modernistic bidding. Modern experts tend to use step responses. Thus, when they respond to a club opening they bid the lower of any two four-card suits. With two five-card suits they still bid the higher one.

South actually managed to make six when the defense forgot to lead diamonds.

He won the heart lead with dummy's ace because he wanted to keep entries to his own hand. Then he led a club and finessed his jack. West won with the queen and led a second heart to South's king. Now South played out his king and queen of trumps, led a third trump to dummy's ace and played dummy's last club. He then finessed his 10 spot as a safety play to guard against the possibility that East held all missing clubs.

South's contract was safe if the finesse lost. When it won he received the added bonus of shutting out East's ace of diamonds, since he was able to discard dummy's three diamonds and one heart on the good clubs. He made the last two tricks by ruffing his diamond and dummy's last heart.

Moberly 17-4 on the year

17th-ranked 'Hounds visit SFCC

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Moberly Area Junior College, ranked 17th in this week's National Junior College Athletic Association basketball poll, invades State Fair Community College Saturday for an 8 p.m. game in the Ag Building on the Missouri State Fairgrounds.

Led by 6-9 sophomore center Vern Dixon, the Greyhounds have fashioned a 17-4 record.

Dixon, termed by his coach Charles Spoonhour as one of the premier players in the nation's junior colleges, spearheads a team that has the distinction of being the only junior college in America to ever win back-to-back national championships. Moberly turned in that feat not once, but twice — 1954 and '55, and again in 1966 and '67.

Through the years, Moberly has been rated as the most consistent team in the nation in making it to the national playoffs in Hutchinson, Kan. In addition to their four national championships, the Greyhounds have finished in the runner-up spot twice. All told, Moberly has been to the national tourney 17 times.

Spoonhour has been at Moberly only two years. In his initial year last season, he and the Greyhounds missed by only two points of making another trip to Hutch, losing to Three Rivers Junior College in the rubber game of the Region XVI playoffs.

"Now those are a bunch of honors," said Bill Barton, whose Roadrunners are still trying to get to the .500 mark. "Needless to say," he commented, "I won't have a lot of trouble getting the kids up for this one."

Dixon, one of the most mobile big men in junior college, poured in 29 points in the first meeting between the two clubs, when Moberly ran away with a 74-61 win.

"I know he can score, but the things we have to counter are his outstanding defensive play and rebounding ability," Barton said Thursday. "For these reasons alone we are going to have to get him away from the basket... somehow."

Dixon by no means is a one-man show. There's 6-7 forward John Gordon and his frontline mate Raynard Sills (6-4).

In the backcourt, Spoonhour will go with Kern McKelvey and either Brad Remole or David Miller.

Barton, hoping to lift his season's record to 10-10, will counter with his big inside scoring punch of Colles Webb and Charles Shell. The two sophomores combined for 47 points in Monday night's victory over Iowa Western.

Lewis Busch, back for the second half of the season after undergoing back surgery in October, will probably draw the defensive assignment against Dixon.

Sophomore Jack Easley and freshman Jerry Bybee will make up Barton's guard corps.

"The last two times we've met," Barton pointed out, their full-court press hasn't given us that much trouble. But their half-court press has forced us into a lot of mistakes."

"We've been working on the pressure and the elimination of mistakes, and if we can concentrate on eliminating those errors, I think we can give them a good game," he concluded.

Moberly's only losses this year have been to Northeastern Oklahoma A&M, Burlington, Iowa, Paducah, Ky. and Phillips County, Ark.

Following Saturday's action, the Roadrunners return to Neosho, Mo. where they will try and defend their Crowder College Classic championship, won last year with an upset victory over Gulf Coast, Fla., which at that time was ranked second in the nation.

Stage set for rematch

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coach John Wooden of UCLA doesn't believe Pauley Pavilion is a particularly hostile arena for visiting teams but the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame will find few friends there Saturday night.

The Bruins, 13-1 and in the unfamiliar role of No. 2 in the nation, host the unbeaten Irish in the nationally televised game starting at 8:30 p.m. PDT.

Notre Dame broke UCLA's record 88-game winning streak and replaced the Bruins as No. 1 in the nation with a 71-70 triumph last Saturday at South Bend, Ind.

Coach Digger Phelps of Notre Dame said he would go against the Bruins the same way he did at South Bend.

"Against UCLA there will be no change in the lineup," he said.

"We'll start the same team, and we don't expect to change our style of play."

Odds makers favor UCLA by about 15 points but Wooden is quick to point out that 12,589-seat Pauley Pavilion on the UCLA campus is no "snake pit" in the sense that fans don't sit right on the side or end lines.

"The homecourt advantage is something people talk about," Wooden said. "But our crowd is father back from the court."

Still, UCLA has won 58 straight home games and 126 of 128 games played at 8-year-old Pauley, losing only to cross-town rival Southern Cal.

Wooden said he believes a good team should be able to overcome a hostile environment, such as Notre Dame's arena where more than 11,000 fans were whipped into a frenzy by the Irish 12-point streak at the end.

But the noise affected UCLA strategy, as Wooden disclosed when he second-guessed himself.

"If we were someplace else, even on a neutral court, I would have called time out," he said of a move to possibly break Notre Dame's momentum. "But then it would just give that crowd more of a chance to cheer and get behind their team."

"I didn't call it and it didn't work out. I let play continue and Notre Dame stayed hot."

Grems junior high goes 6-0 in loop

Sacred Heart's junior high basketball team ran its Kaysinger Conference record to 6-0 on a 38-20 victory over LaMonte Thursday night.

The Grems used their press to fashion an 18-6 halftime lead. Lenny Freund and Gary Weller had 12 each for Sacred Heart; Bob Berg led LaMonte with 10.

In girls volleyball action, LaMonte won 12-15, 15-3, 15-3. Monday night, Sacred Heart goes to Lincoln.

Bob Paul leads S-C sophomores

BOONVILLE — The Smith-Cotton sophomore basketball team rallied in the second half from a 24-17 deficit at the intermission to upend Boonville 51-42 Thursday.

Bob Paul and Matt Stevenson both hit in double figures for the victors with 21 and 12 points respectively.

All of the Boonville scorers were held out of double figures. The S-C sophomores next action will be Feb. 15 in Hannibal.

Knights eliminate S-C Tigers 60-51

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KANSAS CITY — Sedalia Smith-Cotton was eliminated from the consolation bracket of the Kansas City Center Basketball Tournament, an event the Tigers had captured in 1972 and again in 1973, Thursday night, losing to Kansas City Southeast 60-51.

The win pushed the Knights into Friday night's consolation finale against Shawnee Mission, Kan., East, which claimed a 65-42 win over Hickman Mills.

Leading by five, 15-10, after one quarter of play, Southeast heated up for 20 points in the second stanza to extend its lead to 35-19 at the intermission.

Finally in the third quarter, the Tigers got their offense in gear and cut the Knights' lead to 36-30. But a quick spurt, led by William Louis, pumped Southeast's lead back to 44-34, a margin the Tigers couldn't overcome.

"We just kind of stood around in the first half," said Tigers' head coach Jim Dinsdale, who watched his club drop its ninth game of the year. "We got it going in the second half, but we couldn't catch them," he added.

Cold shooting from the floor in the first half, when the Tigers got down only nine of 27 shots really proved to be the difference. In the second half, when the Bengals mounted their comeback attack, S-C hit 50 per cent (13 of 26). "I really think our club is starting to come around," the fifth-year S-C coach said of the Tigers' second-half performance. "We looked more like the ball club I thought we had in the last two periods of play," he added.

Dinsdale was pleased with the play of Dan Knievel, Jim Campbell and Dane Henningsen, all of whom came off the bench, to spark the Tigers in their second-half rally.

Henningsen in particular was singled out. The 6-2 guard-forward led the Tigers in scoring with 15 points.

"We're going to take a couple of days off," Dinsdale concluded. "And then get ready for next week's games with St. Joseph Central (Friday) and Raytown (Saturday)."

Southeast placed two in double figures, Louis, who had 16 and Kevin Waters, who led the way with 18. Joining Henningsen in double figures was Pete Fiene, who had 11.

The tourney was scheduled to wind up Friday night. Shawnee Mission, Kan., South and William Chrisman were paired in the championship game; Ruskin and host Center tangled for third-place honors, while Southeast and Shawnee Mission East met for the consolation trophy.

Scoring

Southeast (60) — Waters 18, Louis 16, Clark 9, Anderson 8, McDowell 5, Ray 2, Williams 2
Smith-Cotton (51) — Henningsen 15, Pete Fiene 11, Best 8, Schnakenberg 6, Spruell 6, Campbell 4, Sanders 1
Southeast 15 20 11 14—60
Smith-Cotton 10 9 18 14—51
Fouled out — (Southeast) none; (Smith-Cotton) Pete Fiene.

Kite, Crenshaw share opening-round lead

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "We're good friends," Ben Crenshaw said with a nod toward Tom Kite.

"But we know what competition is. We're gonna try to beat each other's brains in."

Crenshaw and Kite, both residents of Austin, Tex., former teammates at the University of Texas and golfing rivals for a decade, matched sparkling, seven-under-par 65s Thursday and tied for the top spot in the first round of the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open.

They shared a one-stroke lead over Homero Blancas, Cesar Sanudo and rookie Richard Mast, who took advantage of the bright, warm sunshine to forge 66s.

Crenshaw, Kite, Blancas and Mast all played the 6,667 yard north course at the Torrey Pines Golf Club, the shorter and easier of the two courses being used for the first round of this event. Sanudo played the 7,047 yard south course. Both are par 72, but the north plays easier. The players will change courses for Friday's round and the last two days play will be over the south course.

Leonard Thompson had a 67 while the group at 68 included Gene Littler, Bobby Mitchell and John Lister of New Zealand.

Defending champion Bob Dickson was well back at 72. Johnny Miller, who swept the first three titles of the year, Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf and Arnold Palmer are not competing.

Ask Farrington

Oh those nasty red, white Grems

By broad definition, a gremlin is an unaccountable disruptive influence.

And that definition pretty well describes the way head Cole Camp basketball coach Bob Farrington felt about his loss to a band of gremlins a week and a half ago at Sacred Heart.

The gremlins Farrington was referring to are the red and white ones who wear basketball uniforms and perform, at times, superhuman feats in their dimly-lit gymnasium at the corner of Third and Vermont.

"Boy does that loss ever look big now," Farrington said savoring his upset win over Smithton Tuesday night. "We had the rough part of our schedule early this season... if we got through it I thought we might have a good chance at the league championship," he continued.

"And then we blew it up there," looking back at the 53-51 loss to the Gremlins on Jan. 15.

"But we picked up the pieces from that loss well, I think," he concluded.

Farrington wasn't trying to pat himself on the back, but he was giving the credit where it certainly belonged — to his players.

Since losing to Sacred Heart, The Bluebirds have upended three of the conference's powers in succession — Green Ridge, LaMonte and Smithton. The LaMonte and Smithton wins counted in the league standings, while the victory over Green Ridge came in the third-place game of the Stover Invitational Tournament.

Remaining on the conference schedule for Farrington, who is in his seventh year of coaching at Cole Camp, are Northwest (tonight), Warsaw (Feb. 8) and Stover (Feb. 15).

Farrington has won only one Kaysinger Conference basketball championship since his reign started there in the 1967-68 season. Like virtually every coach, the 30-year-old St. Louis native felt his charges had as good a chance as anyone to win the title this year.

"And then we blow it up there," Farrington moaned again trying to blot out the memory of the Sacred Heart loss.

Tonight's another night and Farrington doesn't want a replay of what happened last week at Sacred Heart.

"I feel like we've got a good chance to at least salvage part of the crown, but we can't have anymore let-downs like we did up there," he added.

Green Ridge, which won eight of its first nine games and still has an impressive 12-5 slate, will have its hands full at Smithton tonight, which saw its 13-game winning streak halted by Cole Camp Tuesday.

In addition to those key battles, LaMonte plays host to Sacred Heart. Both Smithton and LaMonte trail Cole Camp by only one-half game in the league standings at 3-1. However, neither can afford another loss in conference play.

In non-conference action, Lincoln visits Climax Springs and Leeton is at Stover.

One game is scheduled Saturday night; that being a make-up contest for Cole Camp at Deepwater. The game was postponed earlier this year due to inclement weather.

Jeff City, Hickman meet in key conference game

The tournament activity hasn't stolen all of the spotlight in the Central Missouri Conference this weekend.

Half the teams, Sedalia Smith-Cotton (Kansas City Center) and Hannibal (Chillicothe) have been involved in tournaments, but Jefferson City and Columbia Hickman will steal most of the show tonight in the Capital City, where the teams will tangle for the first time in conference action this season.

Jefferson City upset the top-seeded Kewpies in the finals of the Capital City Tournament a couple of weeks ago, but the Jays need to come up with a big effort to get into the victory column for the first time in league play.

Jefferson City has lost two of its three road conference games in Hannibal and Sedalia. Hickman on the other hand, needs a victory just as badly, standing at 1-1 in CMC play. Hickman defeated Hannibal on the road last week, but lost their league opener at home to Smith-Cotton.

Both Jefferson City and Hickman have Saturday night dates. The Jays will travel to St. Louis for a non-conference game with McKinley; Hickman plays host to Kansas City O'Hara.

Anderson hits 18 in MU win

COLUMBIA — For the third time in as many starts, freshman Kim Anderson led the way for the University of Missouri junior varsity as the Baby Bengals posted their fifth victory of the season. The win came at the expense of Trenton Junior College Thursday afternoon 81-69.

Anderson, a 6-8 freshman from Sedalia Smith-Cotton, poured in 18 points to tie for game honors with teammate Jeff Currie.

Leading by only two at the half, 37-35, the Tigers hit 33 of 41 free throws in the game.

ILFT charges 'Americanization'

Battle expected over who rules pro tennis circuits

LONDON (AP) — Troubled tennis officials from more than 60 countries gathered in London Friday for what promised to be a stormy battle over who controls the game around the world.

A meeting of the International Lawn Tennis Federation (ILTF) has been called over problems that have emerged since the formation of World Team Tennis (WTT), an American-based group which plans to run an inter-city league across the United States.

WTT's May-through-September schedule cuts right across several prime ILTF tournaments including Wimbledon and the French, Italian and U.S. opens.

But this issue is only the tip of the iceberg.

Militants within ILTF see WTT as another move in the "Americanization" of the game. They are demanding a complete ban on all players who sign for WTT. They also want the ILTF, which has been struggling to retain its theoretical hold on world tennis, to bare its teeth against other power groups.

The ILTF's Management Committee deliberates Friday on a policy to put before a full meeting Saturday. But it will have difficulty presenting a united front.

WTT, in a proposed tie-up with the long-established World Championship Tennis (WCT) group of Texas millionaire Lamar Hunt, has said it would release players for the major events on the ILTF calendar.

But some ILTF delegates are hostile to this apparent peace plan. They say there is no way sufficient top players can be released at the height of the WTT season.

The militants also see any developments between WTT and WCT as a potential danger to the ILTF. They consider its power already reduced by the agreement that ended a long and bitter dispute between the ILTF and WCT by roughly splitting the tennis year between the two organizations.

"We do not want tennis to be handed over to the United States like golf has been," ILTF's Danish-born president, Allan Heyman, said recently. "We have to protect the interests of our 99 member countries."

Little or nothing is likely to be made public until the end of the full ILTF session Saturday.

Meanwhile, in Philadelphia, Hunt announced on Thursday that WCT will no longer recognize sanctions imposed by the USLTA.

Hunt said WCT will arrange its own schedule of events and will consider itself free of any sanction or obligations to pay sanctions to the USLTA.

He said WCT would provide "schedule protection" for four major events, including the U.S., French, and Italian Opens and Wimbledon.

In a related action, the Association of Tennis Professionals (ATP), a group which includes most of the world's top players, voted in effect to withdraw its objections to the new WTT.

MU meets Buffs on road

Kansas takes 3-0 record to OU

KANSAS CITY (AP) — "I told him I thought his team could win the Big Eight," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps of his talk with Kansas Coach Ted Owens after the No. 1-ranked Irish nipped the Jayhawks 76-74 at Lawrence Tuesday night.

How good a basketball prophet Phelps is could be determined Saturday afternoon when conference leader Kansas, 3-0, ventures to Norman to take on Oklahoma, 3-1, and sophomore sensation Alvan Adams.

Phelps had another warning for Oklahoma when he said of the Jayhawks, "I know how they can play after this."

The Notre Dame coach also said something that would give hope to OU fans when he said of the Lawrence site, "The home court doesn't affect the visitors—it just motivates the home team that much more."

Fouls forced KU to use 6-foot-10 Danny Knight and 6-foot-9 Rick Suttle together for the first time this season and the combination was effective.

"We have not worked on this in practice, and it was something that just came about," said Owens, adding cryptically, "It gives us possibilities for the future."

Saturday night Nebraska, 1-2, travels to Oklahoma State, 0-4, Missouri, 1-1, is at Colorado, 2-2, and Iowa State, 1-3, goes to Kansas State, 3-1.

Lon Kruger heads the Kansas State cast. The 5-foot-11 guard was named Big Eight Player of the Week for his 49 points in triumphs over Oklahoma State and Missouri last week. Kruger had 16 in the Wildcats' 73-65 verdict over Nebraska Tuesday night.

The development of Jerry Fort of Nebraska has impressed Oklahoma State Coach Guy Strong. "I can't say enough about Jerry's play," says Strong. "He's becoming a real outstanding player. He's tough to cover because he can shoot from the outside and also maneuver inside."

Missouri Coach Norm Stewart says Colorado has "been using a lot of ballplayers this year. That makes it extra tough to keep our defensive alignment straight."

The Tigers, who won the pre-season tournament, know they have their work cut out for them. "Our two teams match up pretty well physically," Stewart points out.

Formation meeting set for S-C booster club

An effort to establish a booster club at Smith-Cotton High School was announced Friday morning by Roy Schankenberg, 1801 South Stewart.

A formation meeting, at which officers will be elected, has been set up for 6:30 p.m. Wednesday at the First Christian Church, 200 South Limit. A ham and bean supper is planned, at the cost of $1.25 per person.

Schankenberg pointed out that the booster club is not solely being established for the athletic teams at the high school.

He went on to say the club's formation has been endorsed by School Board President George Thompson, and Dr. Allan C. Henningsen, superintendent of schools.

Hundley, Hands agree to Minnesota contracts

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Catcher Randy Hundley, obtained in the off season from the Chicago Cubs for catcher George Mitterwald, signed his 1974 baseball contract with the Minnesota Twins Thursday for a reported $60,000.

The 31-year-old Hundley said he was pleased, and somewhat surprised, with the contract. Twins' president Calvin Griffith offered him.

Hundley will have his knees examined by team doctors, but said he expected no problems. He has had surgery on both knees.

Hundley apparently was not expecting the type of contract he received after right-hander Bill Hands came to the Twins from the Cubs last year and was asked to take a cut.

This year, Hands, 7-10, sounds more optimistic.

"I'm a lot happier now than I was last spring when Mr. Griffith cut my pay," said Hands.

Williams wants to return to baseball

Andrews firing crowning blow

BOSTON (AP) — Dick Williams, the manager everybody wants while he reclines in sunny Florida, says Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley forced him to quit by firing infielder Mike Andrews during the 1973 World Series.

"That was the icing on the cake. That was the straw that broke the camel's back," Williams said in an interview Thursday night after he teed off on Finley at the Boston

Dick Williams... stands firm

Baseball Writers annual banquet.

Williams quit the A's after winning the World Series and has taken a public relations with multimillionaire real estate executive John D. MacArthur in Florida — his home.

He said he will stay out of baseball for two years, the term of his contract with Finley. But he said he would miss the game and indicated strongly he would be open to offers to return.

"I can get up tomorrow and look myself in the face when I shave and I don't think the man in Chicago can," Williams told a sympathetic audience of 750. "I made my bed and I'm willing to lie in it."

Finley, whose offices are in Chicago, announced last week that his doctor has advised him to sell the A's, the Memphis Tams of the American Basketball Association and the California Golden Seals of the National Hockey League.

Andrews, the veteran infielder who Finley tried to place on the disabled list after two errors in the Series, was praised by Williams as "a fine ballplayer." Williams said Finley's action was "very inappropriate."

Andrews, picked up from the Chicago White Sox midway through the 1973 season, sat on the bench most of the year. Then, in the second game of the World Series against the New York Mets, he was inserted in the ninth inning and committed two errors at second base which eventually cost the A's the game.

Andrews followed Williams to the microphone Thursday night and said, "I don't know if any of you realize the resemblance between Charley O. and his world-famous mule — they're both asses."

Andrews said he had been examined by two surgeons who found nothing wrong with him and said he would try to get back into baseball.

Although Finley refused to let Williams out of his contract, Williams signed to manage the New York Yankees last month. But the contract was voided by outgoing American League President Joe Cronin.

"Mr. Cronin made a decision he had to make," Williams said. "I had decided long before that that whatever the decision, I would not be back with Oakland next year."

Andrews said of Williams, "He'll be a winner in anything he does because he stands by his guns."

Polly's pointers

Curious tot needs shielding

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with store managers who do not realize how difficult it is for housewives who live 10 or 15 miles away from the store to reach home without warm dairy products, melted ice cream, etc. I do wish these items were at least placed on the last aisle of the grocery instead of the first. — JUDY M.

DEAR POLLY — Bonnie could try soaking her pink stained white nylon sweater in a solution of dish-washer detergent and warm water. Dissolve the detergent in hot water and then add to the warm water. This should be done in a non-aluminum pan. The amount of detergent depends on the hardness or softness of the water. Repeat with more detergent each time until stains are gone. Soak at least one hour. Different stains take different lengths of time. I find this is also good for making yellowed white nylon slips and uniforms really white again. — BARBARA.

DEAR GIRLS — Colors that nylon picks up from other garments are very difficult (almost impossible) to remove. Go into such a project knowing there may be no improvement and the garment already lost.

I tried the dishwasher detergent on nylon underwear and it could "take it" but a nylon sweater, particularly one that is loosely woven and may not have too much body, may be another story. Often we misjudge synthetics and think they are one thing and they are another so the reaction could be completely different. I always feel if something is a loss anyway I am willing to make a try and take the consequences. Color remover, made by dye companies, will remove color from nylon but color that has bled from something else may be another matter. — POLLY.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — My built-in range has push buttons on the front so our 13-month-old son is frequently turning on a burner even though I try to watch him every moment. It is impractical to keep him out of the room since we have a kitchen-den combination. He moves or climbs over chairs or any other barriers I put in his way. Slapping his hands does not keep him from going back later. I know he will eventually outgrow this but I hope some other mothers will give me some ideas as to how they keep their children away from such burners. He certainly needs to be better protected now. — MRS. J.F.

Ann Landers

Bisexual husband uses wife cover-up

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column a reader reported on the Gay Lib parade. That was quite a letter. More recently millions of Americans had a chance to view first hand the Gay protester who brushed by the security officers at NBC and brazenly tried to take over the Today Show.

I'm writing about another kind of problem, however — one that is shared by more wives than you realize. What is she to do when, after several years of marriage, a woman discovers she is being used as a cover-up for a bisexual husband who prefers men?

My husband is a professional man, an accomplished liar, quite masculine — even sexy-looking. I've tried counseling and the final evaluation revealed that my husband has no respect for women and even less for wives.

I believe homosexuals should be permitted to marry each other. It would then preclude them from ruining the lives of women they use simply as decoys. Do you think we will ever live to see the day when homosexuals can legally marry each other? — The Cover Girl.

Dear Girl: Yes, I do. But not for the reason mentioned. Many homosexuals feel that the existing tax laws discriminate against them. They believe that since they live as a "married" couple they should be permitted to file joint income tax reports.

Dear Ann Landers: I wish you could help me to say thank you to a teenager I met during my stay at Holy Cross hospital. All I know about her is that her first name is Debbie, and she is a Candy Stripper who works Mondays and Wednesdays.

When I was a patient recently this darling teenager did small favors for me like brushing my hair, writing letters, feeding me, and straightening the bedclothes. She often came during her lunch hour when she was off duty to do "extra" things. I would wait for her and I always felt better in her presence. The two things I remember most about Debbie are her smile and her warm personality.

On my last day I did want to say goodbye to her but a nurse's aide informed me Debbie had hurt her back while lifting a patient and she was in the emergency room waiting for X-rays. I left without saying thank you.

I hope you will print this letter, Ann. So often we hear of the teenagers who are in trouble and rarely does anyone mention the good things others do. — Grateful.

Dear G.: Here's your letter of thanks to Debbie. Now, may I add mine, not only to her, but to all the Candy Strippers who do such a wonderful job.

Dear Ann Landers: You have made it a point in your column to warn people about the "secret killer," high blood pressure, but you have never said anything about low blood pressure. My mother has had it for years and it worries me terribly, although she isn't the least bit concerned.

Can low blood pressure be dangerous? What should be done about it? Mom doesn't like doctors and hasn't seen one since my little sister was born six years ago. What do you say? — Charleston, W. Va.

Dear Chas: I say it's time for her to see a doctor, whether she likes them or not. Sometimes low blood pressure is a symptom of real trouble. Your mother might have a thyroid problem, anemia or perhaps there's an infection somewhere in her body. Tell her she has been very foolish for the past six years and her luck could run out any day now.

BILL GREER SAYS: "DON'T WRITE OFF THE FULL SIZE CAR."

Remember the Meat Crisis?

Farmers drowning chickens because they couldn't afford the feed? Cattlemen stopped breeding their herds, soybean added to hamburger, and people told to eat less meat and more fish, boycotts, rationing discussion, etc.

Then Four Months Later—

No shortages, prices rolled back, no boycotts. Looking back, aren't you glad you didn't become a vegetarian?

How About Newsprint?

Six to eight months ago newspapers over the country were reducing the size of their papers, limiting the size and frequency of ads, eliminating comics, features, etc.

And Now . . . Today

Most newspapers seem to have sufficient paper stocks to publish as they please.

WHAT ABOUT TOMORROW?

REMEMBER

PRESIDENT NIXON SAID—

IN HIS RECENT REPORT ON THE ENERGY CRISIS THAT IF WE CONTINUE TO CONSERVE ON THE SAME BASIS THAT WE HAVE BEEN DOING IN THE PAST SEVERAL MONTHS! GAS RATIONING WILL NOT BE NECESSARY.

Ford LTD Averages 19.7 MPG In Economy Test Drive

Hugh Downs, popular television announcer recently drove an LTD from Phoenix, Ariz., to Los Angeles at 50 MPH under controlled conditions for an average of 19.7 miles per gallon.

Remember the Wheat Crisis?

So much wheat sold to Russia, U.S. supplies depleted, bread shortages were predicted, all grains to be in short supply.

Then Four Months Later—

No wheat product shortages. No significant price increases. Historic wheat crop harvests in 1973. Grain storage capacity taxed to their limits.

Is Ralph Nadar Right?

In Ralph Nadar's controversies with the auto industry, the government has considered Nadar to be right in many instances.

Is Nadar Right About Gasoline?

Nadar insists there is no gasoline shortage.

Will you look back and wonder whatever became of the energy crisis? Will you be satisfied with that little car for the next two years that's not as comfortable, rides harder, is too small for your growing family, and is certainly nowhere as safe?

Automobiles are a long term investment. Consider your future needs now rather than reacting to short term possible temporary situations.

'Doc Savage' comes to screen

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — After some 40 years, "Doc Savage" will finally come to the screen.

The hero of hundreds of pulp magazine stories with a renaissance in paperback novels, Doc Savage was the forerunner of Bond, Flint and all the other superguys. And yet, until now, he has never come to life in the movies.

This winter George Pal will produce and Michael Anderson direct a movie called "Doc Savage... Man of Bronze," which they hope will be the first in a series of Savage sagas.

As this is written, the part of Doc is not cast. Pal and Anderson have considered more than 1,000 actors, without finding the right man. It is a difficult part, because Doc Savage is the perfect man, and you just don't find them in your average casting call.

Pal says he first thought of updating the stories which were set in the '30s and today have a certain campy flavor. The updating didn't work so they've gone back in time and again are set in the '30s, which will please the Savage purists.

They have made a few changes, however. Savage's headquarters were a simple New York penthouse. Pal and Anderson have made it far from simple. It's still a penthouse but now it's crowned by an immense eagle's head from which Doc spies on the world and out of which can soar his autogyro.

"Savage was ahead of his time, gimmick-wise," Pal says. "Besides the autogyro, which became our helicopter, Savage used to tape record his phone conversations, long before that became fashionable."

Anderson says that Savage differed from his direct descendant, James Bond, in one important way.

"Savage is single-minded," Anderson says. "He cannot be sidetracked by girls. He has a way with girls, of course, but he does not get emotionally attached to any of them, lest his enemies get to him through them."

It took Paul more than a year to obtain the rights to the Savage stories. This has deterred others who thought of filming the stories. It was a complicated mess, because he had to go to both the estate of the author (Lester Dent, who wrote under the name of Kenneth Robeson) and the publishers, the original and the reprint houses. But he persevered and today they are all his.

He owns the rights now to all 181 Savage stories. He expects to turn many into movies — the second script is already written. Of course, it all depends upon how the first one does at the box office. If all goes well it will be released late this coming summer.

George Pal... casting for the perfect man

And there's always the possibility of a TV series — but Pal says first he'll exploit the movie box office. He figures he can always do the TV series later.

Couple with words is top team as lyricists

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Upstairs, a piano was tinkling away. Downstairs, Marilyn and Alan Bergman were doing their thing — working on another lyric.

The Bergmans, husband and wife, are among today's top lyricists. People come to them for lyrics now the way you go to the supermarket — and they expect just as quick service.

They were working on the title song for the Norman Lear TV series, Good News. As usual, the producer thought about the song at the last minute and gave the Bergmans only a week to do it. With composer Dave Gruson, they were putting the finishing touches on the song.

"A TV theme song," Alan Bergman said, "presents problems. It must set the tone of the show and yet it can only be 40 seconds long. Much harder to write than a regular-length song."

The Bergmans probably will get their sixth straight Oscar nomination for the title song from "The Way We Were," which they wrote with composer Marvin Hamlisch.

It's curious about this talented couple. Traditionally, lyricists get short shrift with the public. Mostly, it is the composer who is remembered. Everybody knows that Hoagy Carmichael wrote "Stardust," for example, but few know who wrote the words to that song. (It was Mitchell Parrish).

The Bergmans believe this is all a result of the old operatic tradition, which made heroes out of the composers and practically overlooked the librettists.

Somehow, however, the Bergmans seem to be reversing the process. Most people know that it was the Bergmans who wrote "The Windmills of Your Mind," but not too many know that song had music by Michel Legrand. (Or, to many it is vice versa.)

At the moment, besides doing the Good News theme, they are embarked on several major projects. They're doing an album with Barbra Streisand, all original songs. Then they are writing the screenplay and score for their own movie, a version of Joyce Cary's novel, "The Horse's Mouth" which they may call "Up Against the Wall."

In the far distant future is fulfillment of their dream to write the libretto for a full-length American opera.

Grand or light opera?

"Neither," Marilyn says. "Medium."

They are both of the opinion that music today is in a good period. They say that there is more social commentary in songs now than at any time since the Elizabethan era.

"Songs lend themselves beautifully to social comment," says Alan. "That's because they are the most immediate of the arts. You can get a song out in a few weeks but a book or a movie or a play takes a long time between when it is written and when the public sees it. Songs, however, are right now."

The Bergmans... songs and social comment

New face

Oliver (Robbie Rist), a nephew of Carol Brady, comes to visit for an indefinite stay Feb. 1 in "Two Petes in a Pod" on the ABC Television Network's "The Brady Bunch," shown at 7 p.m. on KCBJ-TV, Channel 3(17). Robbie is the first addition to the regular cast in the five-year history of the television series.

Riding out those bad years

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD, Calif.

Most agents are characterized as near-villains who would do anything for a buck, or even 50 cents.

So it's nice to hear about Nicholas Hammond and the good advice his agent gave him. Hammond was a child actor and had been doing pretty well. Then he turned 17.

"My agent advised me to quit the business," Hammond says. "He told me that if I continued acting I was facing a few bad years and probably wouldn't work very much."

He advised the youngster to go to college and study something other than acting. Hammond took the advice, went to Princeton and majored in English literature.

Two years ago, he was graduated. Now he has matured into a tall, handsome young man and he has the plus of a fine education and a broad cultural background. He probably would have done many things but the acting bug had bitten deep in his youth.

The day after graduation, he flew to Los Angeles and has been here ever since. He says the first year here was spent mostly in getting established, getting to know the right people and the right way to do things.

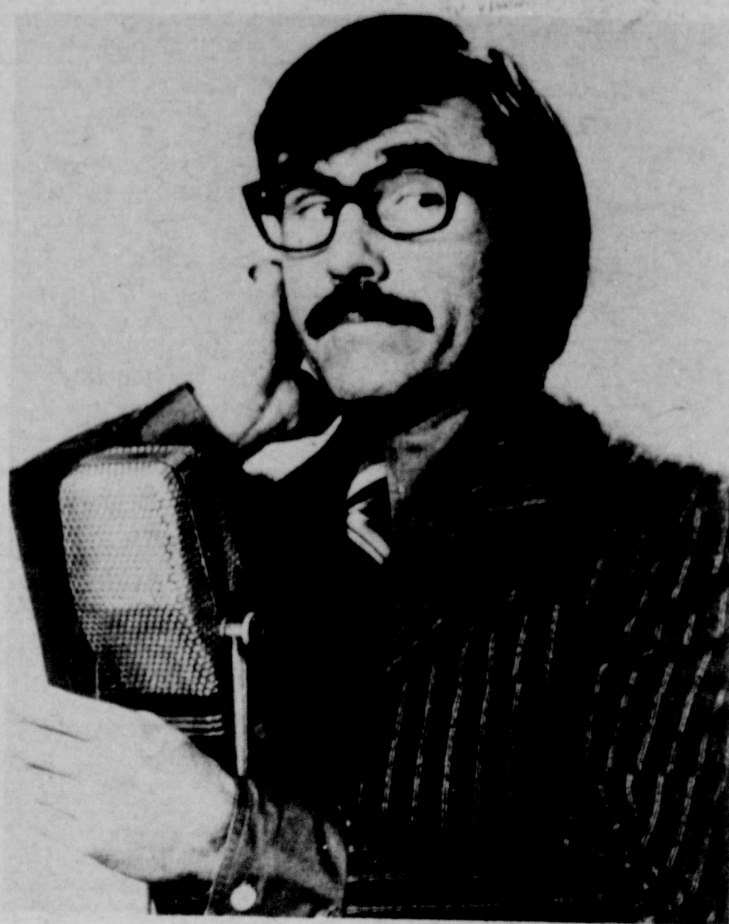

This past year, however, he's been very busy. He just got back from Hawaii, where he was a guest star on Jack Lord's Hawaii Five-O. He's done a few TV movies. He's been offered — but probably will turn down — a pilot for a series called Mr. and Mrs. Cobb, about a policeman and a policewoman who are married.

It all began for Nicholas Hammond as a boy. His father was in the diplomatic corps, stationed for most of Hammond's youth in Washington but there were a few good years in Paris.

When the boy was 11, living in Washington, he read a newspaper story about a casting call.

"They were looking for boys who could speak with an English accent for the movie, 'Lord of the Flies,'" he says. "I had been abroad enough so I knew that accent."

He presented himself on his own and he got the part. The film was to be shot in Puerto Rico that summer and his parents figured it would be a good experience for him — sort of like going to summer camp and being paid for it.

He kept on working. He did some Broadway plays, some TV and some movies. He played the oldest son in the blockbuster movie, "Sound of Music."

And he kept on working until that day, when at 17 his agent gave him that sound advice.

He's glad, of course, that he took those four years off to get the college experience. Now he can face the future unafraid — if anything happens to his acting career, he has that solid foundation to fall back on.

TV scout reports

James Herriott, who wrote "All Creatures Great and Small," a book for and about dog lovers, blames television for the great popularity of German shepherds. Most situation comedy series, he points out, show families with a large dog and city dwellers are following suit. Shepherds are the most popular large dog acquired.

"This is especially unfortunate," he says, "in the case of people who live in apartments because all dogs have four crucial needs. Affection is paramount, but it is important not to smother a dog with love. Training is essential because a dog wants a master, an authority figure. Every dog needs company and it is cruel to leave one alone. A working person should have two dogs for this reason. Exercise must be constantly maintained. His disposition is dependent on his freedom to run or play in an open area."

"There is no need for a city dweller to have an attack dog for protection. A dog that will bark a warning is a better choice and a small dog will bark just as much and is better suited for city living."

Anne was one of the stars of Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice when that TV series had its brief run. But its demise was not a surprise to her. "I think I aged 10 years in 13 weeks."

Daryl Duke, who produced and directed the recent CBS special, I Heard the Owl Call My Name, is not afraid of hard work. Many years ago in New York he handled the Les Crane shows and recalls turning out 250 shows, each 90-minutes long, in a period of 18 months.

Show business is ironic. Anne Archer got a great break when she was cast in the female lead of a bit-budget picture "All-American Boy" opposite Jon Voight, fresh from "Midnight Cowboy."

"I auditioned for the role on three different occasions. When I got it it looked like a big door opening. But that's what happens," she says. What happened? Well, did YOU ever see the film?

TV scout reports

Cloris Leachman is about to shoot a pilot based loosely on the Carol Burnett-Walter Matthau hit movie, "Pete and Tillie." Her costar had not been chosen as this was written.

And there may be a series based on another film, "Evil Knievel." No casting yet but it probably won't repeat George Hamilton in the lead.

Now that filming on McMillan and Wife is done for the season, Nancy Walker has left town, bound for what she calls her "second home" — which she describes as a mini-plantation on St. Thomas in the Caribbean.

Ronny Cox, who will star in the new Apple's Way series for the same production company that makes The Waltons, says he likes The Waltons, except for one thing. "The only thing lacking in The Waltons," Cox says, "is wry humor. I guess there just weren't too many laughs during the Depression. But our show is contemporary. The people have no financial problems, so we will have more humor."

Watch out for the next labor problem threatening the TV industry. An actors' strike looms for June. The union wants 100 per cent residuals — the actors would get the same amount for a rerun as they do for the original telecast. This is an effort to cut down on the number of reruns.

To guard against interruption because of the possible strike some shows may shoot straight through, doing some of next season's episodes this season.

There was a weird, uncanny week on Ironside. They were shooting an episode called "Once More for Joey," and, by coincidence, all this happened:

The guest star was Geoffrey Deuel, the brother of the late Pete Duel. Another guest was Roger Davis, who replaced Pete Duel on Alias Smith and Jones. Another guest was Judy Carne, who had costarred with Pete in Love on a Rooftop. And another guest was Pamela Bellwood — and Pete's sister is named Pamela.

George Stanford Brown of The Rookies may spend his hiatus in England. He's being paged to star in an English movie, "The Vigil of Arnie."

which was written by a 21-year-old Oxford undergraduate named Clifford Raymond.

It's a good season for the Howard family of Burbank. Both sons, Ron and Clint, have series on ABC. Ron (who used to be Ronny) stars in Happy Days and Clint in Gentle Ben.

Their mother Jean recalls the time when both series were pending.

"It was the day before Thanksgiving and I was making pumpkin pies. I also was very nervous and the more nervous I got, waiting to hear, the more pies I baked. Finally the telephone rang and it was the producer of Ron's series saying ABC had picked it up. I baked more pies. A few minutes later, the telephone rang again and it was the news that Clint's series had also sold. We had a great (pumpkin pie) Thanksgiving."

Ron, who spent years as Andy Griffith's son Opie, on Andy's very popular series, really wasn't that anxious to do a series, especially one that cast him as a high school boy because he is now 20.

But Ron was assured that, if the series is a success, his character will be allowed to grow up, get out of high school and into college.

Who would you say is the "most seen" star on TV? Try Bob Barker and you'll undoubtedly be right. He is seen 10 times a week on the syndicated Truth or Consequences and CBS-TV The Price Is Right. He is also host-narrator for such audience-pulling specials as Tournament of Roses Parade coverage on CBS, the 25-year-old Pillsbury Bake-Off, the Indianapolis 500 Parade, the Miss U.S.A. and the Miss Universe Pageants and the Macy's Thanksgiving Parade in New York City. This means Bob is viewed in the morning, afternoon, early evening and prime-time hours. You can't get more exposure than that.

Steve Allen and his lovely wife Jayne Meadows hosted a party for producer Bill Harbach, who was leaving for New York. Despite a very rainy night it seems every comic in town showed up at the Allen home.

It was the same group which "roasted" Steve for a late night ABC-TV special, and the roasting continued.

For instance, producer Paul Keyes, a very funny man, stood up (after the sit-down dinner) and said, "I want to thank Bill Harbach for getting the Allens to open up their house. Jayne calls me every three weeks and says, 'Steve and I love you and we want you to come for dinner.' But I never hear from her. Then she goes on Merv Griffin's show and talks about her house and she's got 22 rooms."

At which point Eydie Gorme said, "And all of them rented."

Buddy Hackett talked about plane crashes to Harbach. When he finished someone mentioned an airline, which crashes a lot, and said, at least Harbach didn't have to worry about flying that line, since it didn't travel from Los Angeles to New York. Steve Lawrence popped up, "Yes, it does. It's just that it has never made it yet."

Other guests, all of whom took turns topping each other, included Tim Conway, Jack Carter, Dave Garroway, Richard Dawson, Louis Nye and Carroll O'Connor.

Tim Conway, who was a guest at a party Steve and Jayne Meadows Allen had at their house, said, "I only came to see if I could get my other car stolen."

Seems Tim and his wife were guests at a party thrown by Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme. The valet took Tim's car and told him he didn't need a ticket. Tim never saw the car again. The "valet" was a red-jacketed thief.

Tim's license plate is "13 weeks" and his friend producer Ron Cark says with that plate "the car could only be driven by Don Rickles or Jerry Van Dyke." (An inside TV joke referring to the short run each has had in a TV series).

If you watch Kojak regularly, you have seen the name of Demosthenes listed in the cast. He's an actor who plays a cop. He is also George Savalas, the brother of series star Telly Savalas.

A segment of Gunsmoke written by William Keys had this funny direction in the script:

"Jonnalee crosses to stand by Ellen. He pulls her down and kisses her. As would any gentlemen, he first stops picking his teeth with his knife."

Woody Allen, who has been missing from TV for a long time because he is so busy with his writing and filmmaking, will make an appearance (and plug a film) on an upcoming 60 Minutes.

Critique of current television, from Australian film critic and writer Charles Higham:

"I am not a big fan of your TV. Most of the shows are too pat, like they were turned out by a computer. They all look like pieces of linoleum."

Wayne Rogers of M-A-S-H was sympathizing with Monte Markham on the demise of The New Perry Mason.

"They didn't give you the break we got," Rogers said. "Last year, the first ratings came out and M-A-S-H was third from the bottom. But CBS stuck with us. They just let your show die."

Some segments of the public believe that all TV shows are real. But the knowledgeable viewers realize it is all, of course, make believe.

Yet is it funny how some people still believe everything they see, and not just the dolts, either. Jack Lord, who plays Steve McGarrett on Hawaii Five-O, part of the fictitious special police branch, recently received a Telex message from the FBI in Washington.

They asked him, as head of Five-O, to keep an eye out for a particular criminal. They apparently thought both Five-O and McGarrett were for real.

We may be seeing Fess Parker back on the TV screens next fall. He's going to do a pilot for Don Feddersen, something about the home life of a hard hat.

Country singer Roy Clark brought his family — father, brothers, uncles, cousins — for their first visit to California, and they all worked on The Flip Wilson Show. The second day, Flip asked Roy how his folks were enjoying California.

"They spent all yesterday in their hotel rooms," Roy said, "just marvelling at the walls."

Speaking of Flip Wilson, after this current season is over, he hopes to take his two kids off on a two-month trip to Europe. He'd have no set itinerary, just wander as the spirit moves them.

Carol Burnett and Rock Hudson have been offered heaps of money to reprise their "I Do! I Do!" smash, which they did on the Los Angeles stage, in Las Vegas. But they may elect to do it, first, at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

The recent ABC-TV Movie of the Week, Death Squad, originally was written as a feature film. But because it was similar in plot to Clint Eastwood's newest "Dirty Harry" picture, "Magnum Force," it was made as a TV flick.

Yes, it was a pilot for Robert Forster.

Dick Cavett says he is unsettled by the fact that John Wayne is endorsing a line of men's toilet products. "I'm afraid," Dick says, "that in his next movie he may gun down a cowboy just because the cowboy has a case of the frizzies."

David Hartman has produced a special for ABC's late night specials. It took longer to come up with a title than it did to make the film, which deals with the birth and health of children. Finally, it was titled David Hartman ... Babies and Children.

Richard Lenz, who is on Hec Ramsey, says he doesn't think it's a good idea to direct plays he has written (and he has written many). "Although I would rather direct the play myself than have another director handle it badly."

Lenz likes the fact that Hec Ramsey only takes four months to shoot. "It pays well and I can still do what I want the other months, if someone wants me to do it."

Lucky in the big pond

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Ronny Cox is living proof that sometimes the little fish in the little pond can become a big fish in the big pond.

A few years ago, you would have had to say that his chances for success were pretty slim. He was working at the Arena Stage in Washington, D. C. He put in six years there and they were not covered with greatness.

"I always got the smallest part in whatever play we were doing," he says. "I was the littlest fish."

Then he went to New York and worked for 10 days in a free play, Joseph Papp's "The Happiness Cage." From that brief appearance, he got 200 telephone calls with offers.

He elected to try the big pond, Hollywood. One of those 200 calls led, indirectly, to his being cast as one of the four tragedy-bound canoeists in "Deliverance." And now he's starring in what could be the hit of the second season on this year's TV schedule — Apple's Way, which premieres on CBS Sunday, Feb. 10.

He plays George Apple in the series created by Earl Hamner, who put The Waltons together. There inevitably will be comparisons between the shows but Cox feels that the two should not be compared.

"If Apple's Way is like anything else," he says, "it's like the old Frank Capra movies. It's sophisticated humor."

Ronny Cox is a small town New Mexico boy. He was born in Cloudford and raised in Portales. His father was a cowboy at 11 on the Hart Ranch in Texas and did many things. Through most of Ronny's youth, he was a carpenter.

Ronny grew up playing guitar and singing. He was the first one in his family, on both sides, to go to college.

"I went to Eastern New Mexico University," he says.

He helped pay his way by playing and singing folk songs in second rate clubs.

"That's dog's work," he says. "I'd often do four-hour gigs, with no break. But it was fun. If I have one gift it is that I can play a room and get the folks to be with me."

He is still a talented guitar player and he could have played the "Dueling Banjos" number in "Deliverance." "They asked me if I wanted to dub it but I said no. It was a big mistake. The record and the album were huge hits."

He thinks Apple's Way will be a good show and he hopes that it will be a force for good. It's set in the present, unlike The Waltons, and it will tackle contemporary themes — the first show concerns ecology, for example.

Ask TV scout

A relative question

Is Maureen Stapleton, who was in the movie "Airport," the sister of actress Jean Stapleton. If so, who is the older? — Toni Sarocco, Hinsdale, Ill.

The actresses are not related. But they are both very talented and just about the same age — late 40's.

Douglas again

Is Michael Douglas of The Streets of San Francisco married? — S.M., Melrose Park, Ill.

Nope. However, he and actress Brenda Vaccaro are very open about the fact that they live together. And this fact, when it is printed, irritates talk show host Mike Douglas, because someone always misunderstands and writes him a how-dare-you letter. That Douglas is happily married.

Moore puzzlement

Is Roger Moore the brother of the late George Sanders? I say Sanders had a brother by another name but I have forgotten it. A bet between my son and me depends on your answer. — Mary McChristie, Calumet Park, Ill.

Moore and Sanders are not related. Sanders' brother was Tom Conway, also now deceased. Ironically, comic Tim Conway's real name is Tom, but he had to change it. His wife, however, still calls him Tom and some friends call him Tim-Tom.

Your Welk-in

Where can I write a letter to Lawrence Welk? — A. Ryan, North Muskegon, Mich.

Welk has offices at 100 Wilshire Blvd., Santa Monica, Calif.

Puzzlement

I hope you can answer my question. Why do they have so many police shows, hospital shows and funny shows on TV this year? — Nancy Glogavsky, Lake Zurich, Ill.

You have asked a question that most TV critics ask, as well as most TV viewers. The only possible answer is that the people in charge lack imagination and if a hospital show is a success, it breeds other hospital shows and so on.

Stranded

What year did Gilligan's Island come on TV? Were they ever rescued? — K.D., Muskegon, Mich.

Gilligan's Island premiered in 1964 with the cast shipwrecked. When the series ended, they were still shipwrecked. Quite often they were left high and dry by the scripts, too.

Really captured

Is it true that Colonel Klink's secretary on Hogan's Heroes is really Bob Crane's wife? — J. G., Orlando, Fla.

Yes, blond Sigrid Valdis, who played the role, married Bob — on the set of the show, no less. But if you ever see Bob with a brunette wife named Patty, it's the same girl. Patty is her real name and she wore a blonde wig for the show. Also, Patty's sister is married to German actor Eric Braeden, which is merely information for the department of coincidental trivia.

Sherman thanks

I heard Bobby Sherman is married and has a child by a girl friend. Is this true? — L.S., Muskegon, Mich.

Bobby Sherman is married and he and his wife have a child. Bobby had been married for some time before he made the announcement because business advisors always feel it's better if the public doesn't know a teenage idol is married. So the day the world found out he was married was the day Bobby introduced his bride and baby to the public. But they had a church wedding a year earlier.

Can't see the Forrest

My two sisters and I are having an argument about Dana Andrews' brother. Is it Steve Forrest or Forrest Tucker? — Mrs. Hardy, Franklin Park, Ill.

Steve Forrest is Andrews' brother.

Triple header

Will the movie "The Spoilers" with Randolph Scott be on TV again? Is Scott still living? Also, which studio produced the movie "Where Eagles Dare"? — Norman Davis, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Films like "The Spoilers" are scheduled locally, so you'll have to check your local station or check the listings in the paper. Yes, Scott is still alive. Paramount released "Where Eagles Dare."

Fraternal question

Please settle a dispute between my wife and me. Is James Arness of Gunsmoke the brother of the blond leading actor of Mission: Impossible? — A.A.P., Chicago, Ill.

This is one of the questions were are most frequently asked. Yes, Arness and Peter Graves, the blond from Mission: Impossible are brothers. The real family name is Arness. Jim, a few years older than Peter, preceded his brother to Hollywood. When Peter started acting he decided to use Graves, a family name. Proof that they are related? Close your eyes and just listen to either one of their voices.

Sending a birthday card?

How old is Johnny Carson and where could I write to him? — Patricia Morris, Muskegon, Mich.

Someone first said, "Heeeeeeeere's Johnny" on Oct. 23, 1925. Write him at NBC, Burbank, Calif. 91505.

Barker for Barker

Please tell me where Bob Barker was born. Does he act in movies or does he just stick to game shows and M.C. jobs for pageants? — C.P., Orlando, Fla.

Barker, who grew up on the Rosebud Indian Reservation in South Dakota, where his mother was a teacher, was born in Darrington, Wash. Barker doesn't act. He wouldn't have time, even if he wanted to.

Hill country

What year was the film "The Shepherd of the Hills" made and who was in the cast? — Elouise Waggaman, Alexandria, La.

The picture was a 1941 release with Betty Field and Harry Carey.

Ageless

How old is David Janssen? I have a bet with a friend that he is younger than he looks. — B.J., Chicago, Ill.

David was born in 1930, which means he will be 44 this year. How young do you think he looks?

A new direction

What are Michael Landon's plans now that Bonanza is off TV? — B. Norton, Muskegon, Mich.

Michael will appear on TV from time to time, but mostly he wants to write and direct. The next thing on TV that he directed is It's Great To Be Alive, a two-hour TV drama set for February. It's about N.Y. Dodger catcher Roy Campanella, who was paralyzed in a car crash. He is also directing and starring in a pilot for NBC.

Really rookies

Are Michael Ontkean, Georg Stanford Brown and Sam Melville of The Rookies married? Where can I write them? — L. L., Highland Park, Ill.

All three are married. Brown's wife is actress Tyne Daly, the daughter of James Daly of Medical Center. Write them at 20th Century Fox, 10100 Pico Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90213.

Double header

Who was the actor who played Ben Quick on the series, The Long Hot Summer. And does Florence Henderson, who has a commercial for household polish, play the mother on The Brady Bunch? — Helen Colvin, Ravenna, Ohio.

Roy Thinnes played Ben Quick. Yes, Florence does both the commercial and the role of The Brady Bunch mother.

Legitimate complaint

What I would like to know is why are all those good old classic movies shown at such preposterous hours. A few weeks ago, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" was shown at 2:20 a.m. "The Diary of Anne Frank" was telecast at 8:30 a.m. on a school morning. These ridiculous hours mean school children are prevented from seeing these films. — Robin Kernes, Skokie, Ill.

Robin, you have written a very intelligent letter and have shown good taste in the old films you would like to see. Unfortunately there is no predicting what goes on in the minds of those who schedule programs. But since these are locally scheduled, you might write letters to the station program manager telling him that you would like to see these films at a more reasonable hour. Get your friends to write too. It's amazing what mail can achieve.

"The Moon Is Blue." — Gladys Sawyer, Orlando, Fla.

Maggie McNamara played the lead in the 1953 release, which was considered very daring in its day (the word virgin was used). Others in the cast: William Holden, David Niven, Tom Tulley, Dawn Addams and Fortunio Bonanova.

Corey?

A few seasons ago there was a show about a boy named Corey Baker who lived in an apartment with his mother and had a friend upstairs named Earl. What is the boy's real name? — D.K., Chicago, Ill.

The series was Julia, with Diahann Carroll. Marc Coppage played her son Corey and Michael Linke was the boy upstairs, Earl J. Waggerdorn.

Noisy question

Can you please tell me why Ali MacGraw always flares her nostrils? — T.B., Santa Clara, Calif.

Ali considers that acting.

Clue has been in some TV series and says he would like to be in another one. Most notably, he played Billy the Kid in The Tall Man. He was also in The Virginian. One of his favorite roles was that of an athlete dying of cancer in a segment of The Psychiatrist. Another was his role in the TV movie, "The Glass House." That has actually changed his life a bit. As a result of filming that picture in a prison, Clu and Eugene Logan, who coauthored "The Glass House," are writing a picture called "Warden," which he hopes to direct. Additionally, while nothing is set as yet, Truman Capote has announced that he would like Clu to be in a TV film of his called "Uncle Sam's Heartbreak Hotel," about a halfway house for ex-cons. Clu, a native of Oklahoma, is married and lives with his wife and children in the San Fernando Valley.

24 Hours A Day...

Difference noted in TV production

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A local version of public TV's "Washington Week in Review" is afoot at KCET-TV in Los Angeles. But there's a major difference in the type of journalists appearing on the show.

All are working newspaper reporters who get out each day and inspect documents, grill assorted politicians, bureaucrats and other miscreants.

Columnists — who in Washington are generally defined as those who munch on what others report — aren't invited on KCET's "Los Angeles Collective News Review."

"I don't want columnists," says Taylor Hackford, who produces the half-hour, once-a-month show. "The nature of this show is going to be pretty much hard news reporting."

"And I find that I don't get a lot of hard news when I read columns."

He says he wants only journalism's front-line troops because "we're trying to get some perspective and long-range repercussions of stories they've reported, as well as some of the behind-the-scenes things they haven't written about in their articles."

On this month's show, the stories ranged from campaign contributions in California's gubernatorial race to an effort to recall a Los Angeles city councilman.

The four reporters discussing their stories were from the Los Angeles Times, the Long Beach Independent Press-Telegram, the Santa Ana Register and the Northeast Newspapers chain.

Hackford, 29, says an important part of "News Review," which began last month, is that "one of the chairs is always open to a reporter from one of the suburban newspapers."

"Los Angeles, by its very nature, is all spread out and people here have less of a sense of community than they do in other major cities."

Hackford says he doesn't want reporters from Los Angeles' commercial TV stations on "News Review."

The major factor, he says, is that most don't have regular beats, or assignments, let alone air time for in-depth coverage.

"Print reporters, on the other hand, have beats," he said. "For example, Bill Boyarsky, the political reporter on the Times, knows Los Angeles, the city, the county, the state governments."
